coming Full CIRCLE

What does high school have to do with circles? Every day members of the Yearbook staff tried to give an answer to this enigma. The best answer seems to be that everyone's life travels in circles.

As Freshmen we begin the circle when we nervously enter Mansfield High School wondering when it will ever end. As Sophomores we move along by plunging ahead and enjoying a year of few worries. As Juniors we begin to assume more responsibilities that will help us in the future. Finally as Seniors we draw the ends of the circle together as we graduate and emerge into the real world.

Yet a circle is infinite. It has no beginning or ending. So why are we comparing ourselves to a circle? Simply that wherever we are we are somewhere on a circle. If you're a freshman in college you are right back to the beginning. As a corporate lawyer you are somewhere rolling along the circle. Life is a never ending series of beginnings and endings. We will always be. . .

coming Full CIRCLE.

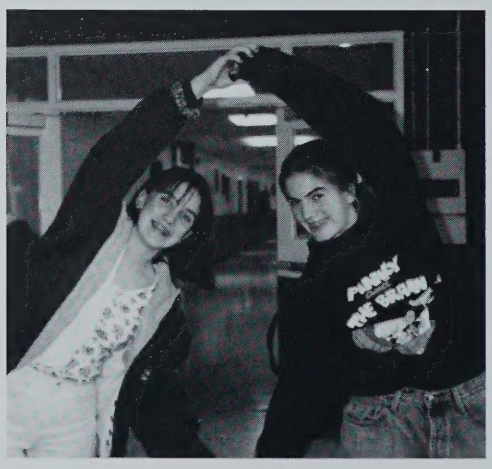
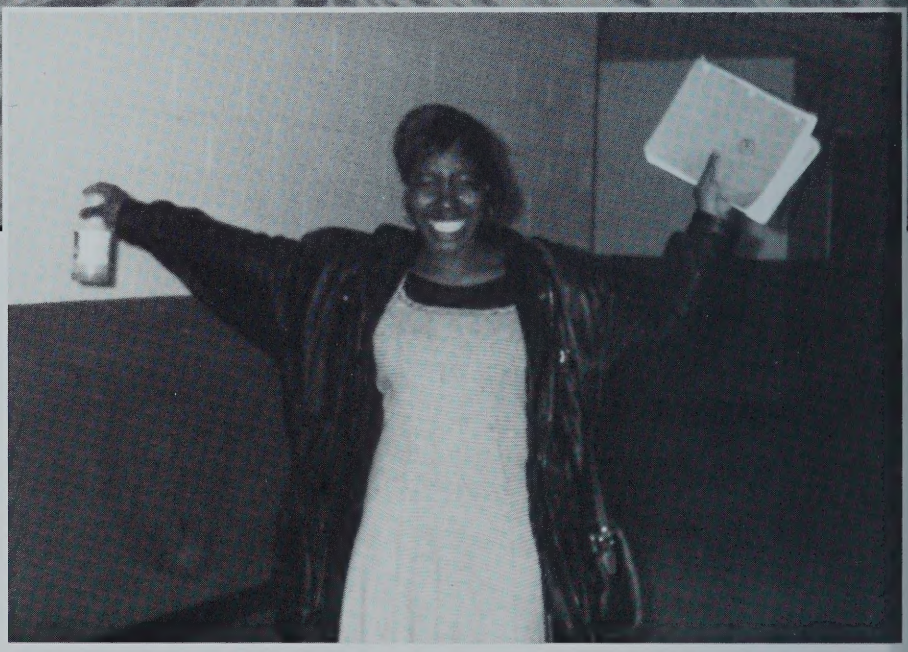
"Okay, I'll do something circular," states Senior Chris King. Then he grabs a tire from the Yearbook room and tries to stay on while it rolls down the hall.

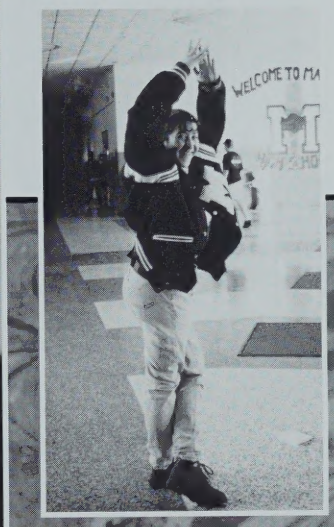




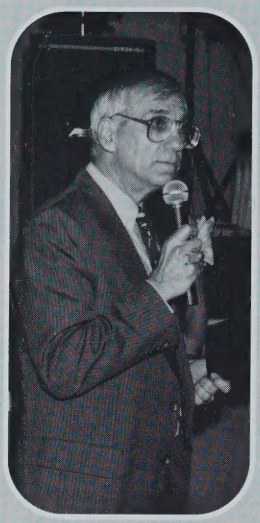
After school, in the lobby, Sophomore Mary Ann Tomase and Junior Leah Tobin dance and twirl each other in circles.

"Whee!" screams Freshman Latasha Davis as she spins around and around. Since it is Friday, she shows her excitement by twirling down the hallway.

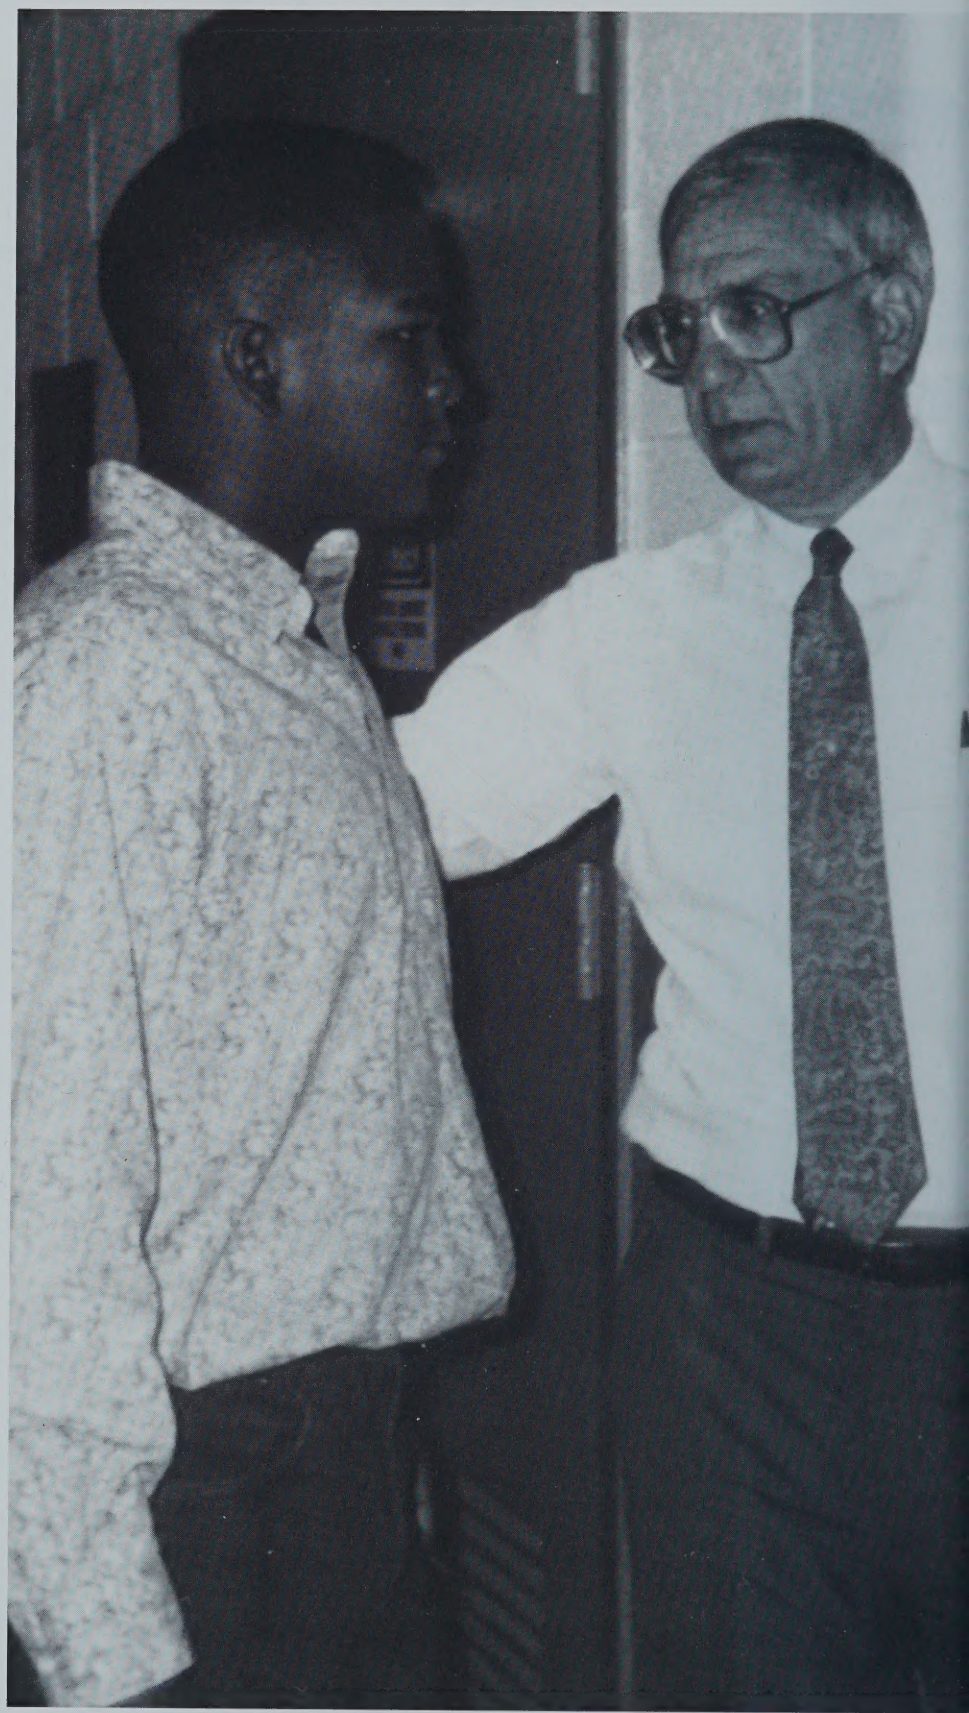
After seeing Freshman Jason Martel spinning, Sophomore Kelly Johnson pirouettes around the lobby until she falls down.



"Hmm," thinks Senior Chris Crockett, "something circular." Senior Chris Crockett invites Senior Hilary Cheyne over. Then he pulls up her hair and demonstrates his opinion of, "something circular."



Offering his congratulations, Principal Edward Rosa encourages the graduating class. "For the past four years, you have prepared for the next phase of your lives. Whether you continue your education at a post-secondary school, enter the work force, or join the armed forces, I am confident that you have acquired the knowledge and skills which will help you achieve success."



Though busy with everyday events, the administration always has. . .

Time to Share

Mr. Rosa congratulates Sophomore Reggie Woody for his outrageous costumes during Spirit Week.

After a long week of assisting students, Mrs. Katherine Flaherty collects her belongings and heads home for some long overdue rest.

Standing in the hallway outside the Writing Center, Mr. Rosa takes time out of his hectic schedule to discuss Spirit Week with Mr. Venuti of the English department.

Mrs. Flaherty chats with Damon Humphries while strolling through the cafeteria.

Although it's not a paying job, Freshman Leah Kane still works hard selling raffles for a freshmen fundraiser. The prize, a flag, was eventually awarded to Mrs. Johnson.

Some people tone up their triceps or biceps, but Junior Scott Conley demonstrates nose flexing. This is one of the things that happens when you have to drag yourself out of bed early in the morning.

Circle of Life

As the title of Elton John's famous song, the circle of life also depicts the lives of Mansfield High School students.

After six hours in a classroom, then several more hours in and afterschool sport or activity, most individuals don't have much time for outside activities. Yet here in Mansfield, time away from school and school-related activities is necessary.

Most upperclassmen spend their time working a parttime job. "I worked in a valve factory that my family owns. I had to get the money for car insurance and college," explains Senior Kasha Gula.

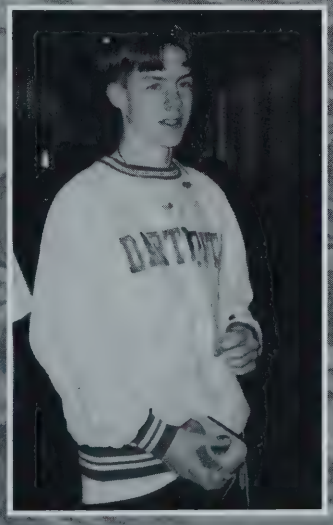
It seems that most upperclassmen spend money on their cars. They either need money to put gas into it or get it repaired.

Meanwhile, the underclassmen have more time to enjoy listening to music or watching TV on all their electronic gismos.

When he's not at school Junior Wayne Baillie laughs, "I play Nintendo, listen to the radio, and do anything except homework."

While driving down Main Street, people can see runners with walkmans on their ears or groups of people huddled together listening to a discman playing the latest CD.

People do just about anythingwhen they leave school. In fact some pretty strange things have happened. Senior Ericka Tucker exclaims, "I found this great sweater on the side of the road!"

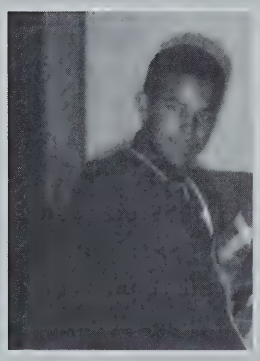


In the gym hallway, Freshman Derek Hansen has his walkman all ready for track practice. As a long distance runner, it's nice to have some music to listen to while running around town.

What's your Favorite breakfast?

"I like a strawberry pop-tart lightly toasted not too crumbly, two glasses of milk, and a vitamin pill."

Senior
Chris Crockett



"French toast with peanut butter, toast with cream cheese and jelly, bacon, three eggs, and milk. It's very yummy."

Sophomore
Reggie Woody

Wiped out from a late night of studies, Senior Jon Corliss tries to catch a few winks before his first period class. Could it be that he was not a 'happy camper' at being pestered by the photographer?

Since MHS students rarely receive the proper amount of sleep, they have found interesting ways to. . .

Rise 'n Shine

BUZZ! The alarm clock screams as you cover your ears. You roll over to hit the snooze button, and then it hits you. There are 115 days left of school! Forcing the horror out of your head, you peacefully fall back asleep.

"First my alarm goes off at 5:55. Then, I listen to an AM sports program for twenty minutes. At 6:15 I go downstairs and make breakfast. Then I go shower and get dressed. I watch TV for a while and leave at 7:25," explains Senior Jason Adams.

Some kids have a morning routine like Jason which assures that they will get to school on time. Others just crawl out of bed and drag themselves to school. Junior Marisa Creed confesses, "I take a hot shower, get dressed, have a cup of coffee, and leave the house."

Another must in a high school student's life seems to be the alarm clock. Without it, most individuals would never arrive at school. Junior Syagean Chang remarks, "I set my alarm early and hit the snooze button five times."

Once they finally roll out of bed, some students need the extra boost that a hot shower provides. Sophomore Ronni Travers, who is an exception to the rule says, "I prefer cold showers."

Some individuals drink coffee or tea to stimulate their brains before they leave for school. Some stop off at Honeydew. However, Senior John Ewens admits, "I drink a cup of coffee with four sugars and milk along with my Cheerios at home."

While some people can barely make it out of the house on time, others have a few extra minutes to watch TV, listen to the radio or even do their homework. Freshman Adanna Walker responds, "I listen to the radio for a while and then rush out of the house."

Walking the halls before school, one can see that most of the people from teachers to students have trouble waking up in the morning. Yet if you look hard enough, you will see people like Senior Jim Fasino. He reveals, "I just wake up and go. I'm all set."

Like a majority of the school, Senior Michelle Thurber attends class wearing her version of a hippie costume. From the flower in her hair to the sandals on her feet, she shows her school spirit.

What is the best day of Spirit Week?

"Hippie Day was far out. I don't remember much but it was far out."

Freshman
Derek Hansen

"Crazy Hair Day was the best because everybody looked weird and weird people are cool."

Freshman
Adrienne Dybes

Following tradition, the first day of Spirit Week is Pajama Day. As president of his class, Freshman Dave Pierce shows his school spirit by wearing his pajamas and slippers along with his favorite flannel robe.

As one of the new days chosen this year, Wild Hair Day became a great success. Decked out in a green wig, Senior Chris King clowns around outside the gym before his next soccer practice.

For one wild, wacky week, students are. . .

Full of Spirit

"Did you see that girl with all the curlers in her hair?"

"Yeah, why did she do that? It's so embarrassing.

"It's for Spirit Week. Each day you dress up in a weird outfit. Today is Pajama Day."

This year the Student Council experimented with some new days for Spirit Week. Flannel and Army Day caused a lot of excitement. In fact, a few kids dressed in complete uniforms. Wild Hair and Dress Up Day dared students to come to school with outrageous hair styles while wearing formal attire. Freshman Lataisha Davis laughs, "I can't believe I made a fool out of myself. I wore a ball gown and a wig."

Back again, Hippie Day gives individuals a chance to experience the past. Many people came in with the popular bell bottoms, fringed vests, tie-dyed shirts, love beads and John Lennon glasses. Sophomore Shannon Sheldon explains, "Hippie Day is my favorite because it's the one day I like to dress up."

Let's not forget the immortal Pajama Day. Senior Kerri Santsaver reveals, "Pajama Day is my favorite. If I could, I would wear pajamas to school every day."

Finally the last day of Spirit Week, students put on green and white. Wearing everything from green hair spray to Hornet tattoos, everybody gathers to hear the winners of the Spirit Contest at the rally. Yet, others still wonder why anyone would want to dress in these odd costumes. Junior Tina Lantz has found the true meaning of Spirit Week. She states, "It gives me a chance to be myself."

Since acquiring their licenses, MHS students have discovered how to. . .

Pump It Up

"Gas is never a problem when I have my father's gas card," comments Senior Meg Smith. Now that the agony of getting our licenses is over, we have to find new and inventive ways to get a full tank of gas.

Some people beg their parents for money or scrounge underneath the sofa cushions, but for others gas money isn't easy to find. Senior Michelle Burns laughs, "The other day I got sixty-five cents worth of gas."

"I always wait until the last second to fill up my gas tank," laughs Senior Gina Flammia.

Many people procrastinate because they hate buying gas. Senior Dave Sullivan admits, "I don't put gas in my car until the light comes on."

Everyone always asks where does all that gas go? Could someone siphon it out of your car while you sit in English class? Senior Kristin Morris answers, "I'm always getting gas because I drive so darn fast."

One thing becomes clear after you get a car. It is far easier to pass your driving test than it is to keep fuel in your gas guzzling car.

After filling her tank, Senior Melanie Morganti feeds her gas card into the machine .

Where's the Best

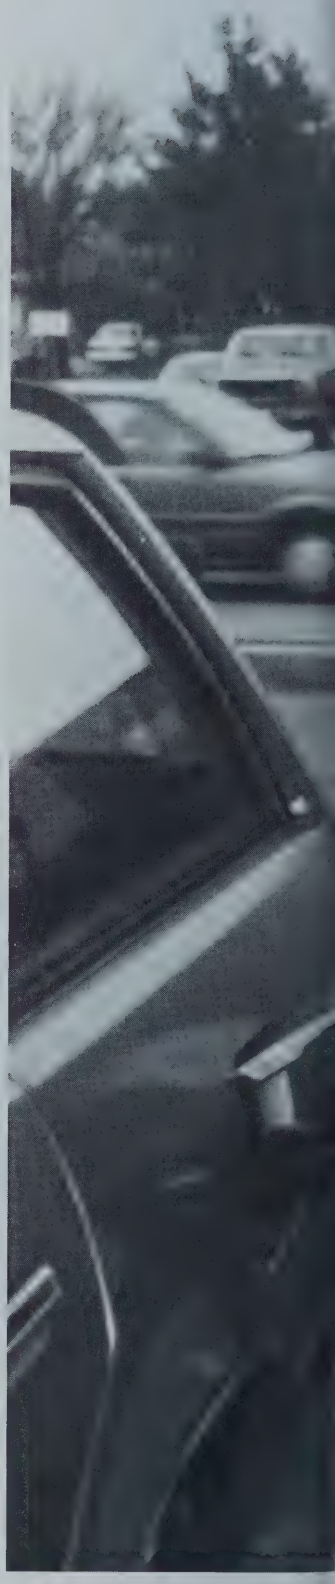
place to get gas?

"I don't pump gas because I don't know how to. I don't have a clue, so I wouldn't know where to go."

Junior
Sarah Scarchilli

"I like Shell because of the new pumps. The old ones wouldn't fit in the tank right. Then Shell installed the new ones which are easier to put in and better for the environment."

Senior
Karen Steele



After coasting in the gas station with his tank on empty, Senior Al McKeever fuels up his car, the infamous "Pooie".

Senior Karen Caldwell heads for the door to pay for gas and to pick up chips for the ride home.

SISTERLY LOVE! Although Seniors Bethany and Caitlin Guild have different classes, they find time to eat lunch together.

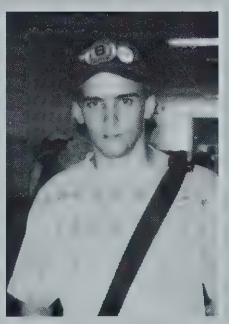
While waiting for practice to begin, twin Sophomores Stacey and Kerri Whelan clown around in the locker room afterschool.

In what ways are twins

Different?

"I've known them both a long time. I guess it's their facial features. Oh, and Kerri's hair is longer than Stacey's."

Sophomore
Andy Tupaj



"One's a boy and the other is a girl. Keri 's also quieter than John."

Junior
Wayne Baillie

With a set of twins around every corner, MHS is the ideal place to stir up some...

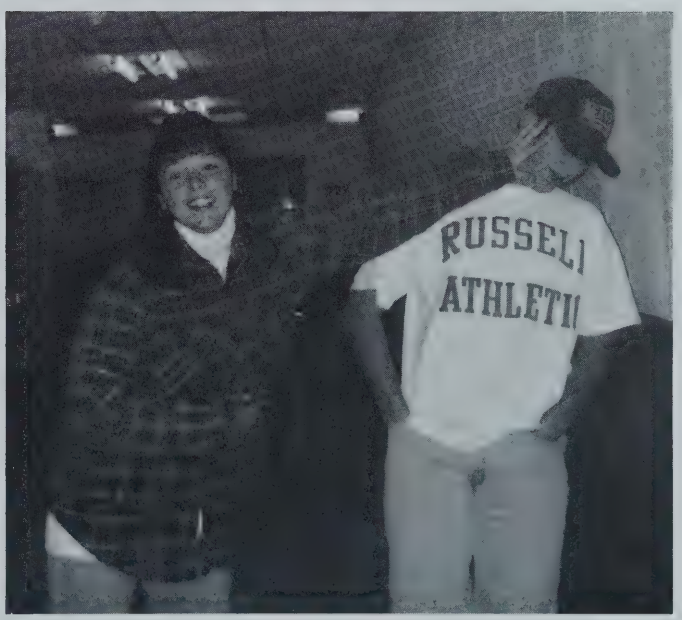
Double Trouble

Have you ever looked down the hall and seen two people who look so alike, you would swear you were seeing double? Don't head to Lenscrafters yet, because here at Mansfield High School twins appear around every corner. People think that having a twin can be a pain; however, the twins at MHS agree that having a double does have its advantages.

One perk is that while many of us had no one to play with when we were younger, twins had the constant companionship that many of us craved Fortunately, the same remains true for many doubles as they have grown. Junior Jason Lippolis says, "I hang out with Jen all the time."

"Two heads are better than one," describes the homework dilemma. Now all those tough algebra problems are a cinch because according to Senior Avani Sindhal, "You have an instant homework helper."

Even though being close is important, most twins believe being an individual comes first. Sophomore Stacey Whelan says it best when she exclaims,"We may look alike, but our personalities are very different."



After accusing his sister of taking his favorite shirt, Sophomore Jason Lippolis takes a hit from his twin, Jen.

The need for cars, insurance, clothes, and food all make MHS students work extra. . .

Hard for the Money

What do Great Woods, McDonalds, Ro-Jacks and Taylor Rental have in common? They're all wonderful workplaces for MHS students.

Why do students slave away at an after school job? No, it's not their love of burgers, it's the money of course. Because for those who don't have very giving Grandma's, work is the only solution to the teenage problem of poverty.

After all who doesn't need the latest CD, or a car for that matter?

"I file in an office because I need the money," states Sophomore Kerri Heywood.

"I had to get money for car insurance and college, so I worked in a valve factory. The work was boring but it was twenty-five dollars an hour," comments Senior Kasha Gula.

For some, money isn't the only reason to work. Junior Stacy Fleischmann recalls her summer working at a yacht club, "I like to work with kids and I knew the people there. It was great."

Whether students sling hash at the local diner or teach children how to swim, one thing remains clear. MHS students work hard for the money.

At Ro-Jacks, Junior Michelle Chappuis bags the groceries that she just rang up on the cash register. After her customer receives his receipt and picks up his bags, Michelle repeats the all too familiar phrase, "Have a Nice Day."

As the trays line up in front of her during the dinner rush, Senior Shelby Ray fills drinks for the anxious customers waiting in line at Wendy's.

What's the Weirdest thing that ever happened at work?

"A guy with all black teeth except one asked me what I was doing after a concert. I said I wasn't going out with him."

Junior
Stacey Mullin

"A drunken woman came over and started swearing at me. We had to have her escorted out by the police."

Whether it's on the bus heading to a game, in 5th period study, or even prime time, MHS students love their modern day...

Gadgets and Gizmos

Although there are still those who do arithmetic on their fingers and observe the stars for their Saturday night entertainment, the majority of MHS students have succombed to the wonderful world of modern technology. In some instances, they have even become dependent on it.

Senior Beth Dahlstrom explains, "My calculator is the difference between a good and a disasterous day. If I forget it I panic, then anxiously look for another, and loose all concentration in the process."

Many students depend on walkmans for spritual guidance and temporary relief during the hectic school day. Sophomore Patrick DesChamps confesses, "When I'm bored in algebra class, I turn on my discman and fall asleep."

Walkmans can be found everywhere from the bathroom to the soccer field. Freshman Jim McKeever replies, "Before soccer games, I listen to my walkman to get my adrenaline pumping."

For the present, we continue to use electrical gadgets and gizmos in most aspects of our life. Yet in the future, with our rapidly advancing technology, will our race become so reliant on modern conveniences that we both physically and culturally revert to our ape-like predecessors? Just ask yourself that question the next time you turn on your sprinkler system from the Grand Canyon or send a fax from the beach, because as a scary as it sounds, AT&T will bring it to you.

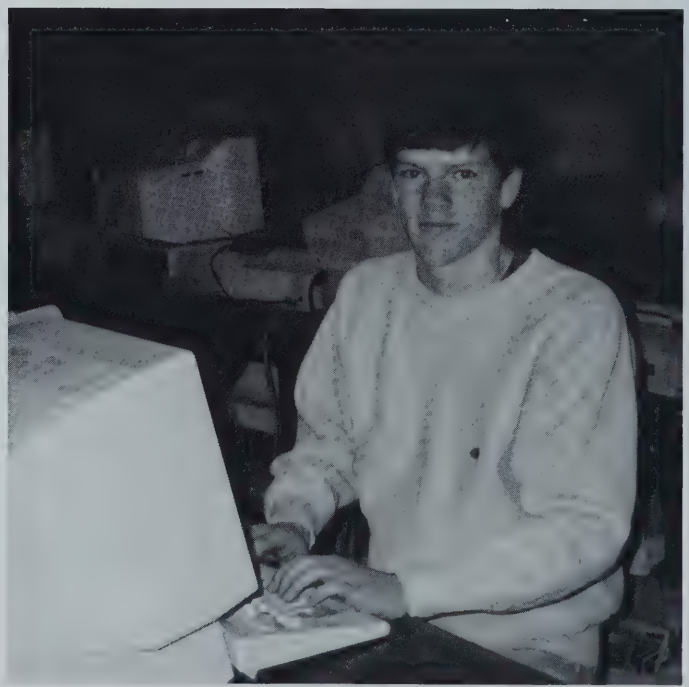
How do you work this thing? Junior Manny Correia is nearly blinded as he tries to work a his camera.



As class begins, Senior Michael Donato loads the computer to type thenext part of his autobiography for English class.

While he changes his books at his locker, Freshman Nick Vlachos likes to listen to his favorite tape.

What gadget do you

Need

the most to get through the day?

"I listen to my walkman before cheerleading practice to relax me."

Freshman
Sarah Briggs

"Besides my walkman? My alarm clock or I would oversleep every morning."

Infinite Wisdom

Students at MHS realize that school is more than just a bunch of classes. Our choices and our classes determine what we will become.

'Reading, Writing, and Arithmetic. Most people grow up believing these are the only subjects in school. Yet here at MHS, diversity is the key to success. Sophomore Jen Mantia insists, "You could look through [the course selection book] for hours and still not know what to take."

Many students choose to enhance their abilities in the Arts department. One can choose from Industrial , Visual or the Performing Arts.

"My sister got me interested," explains Senior Al McKeever who has acted in school plays for four years, "I didn't realize how much effort it entailed. It's worth it when people appreciate how much work we do."

On the other hand, some students choose business or home economics courses to help prepare themselves for the real world.

"I'm going to take Child Development next year because I love kids," comments Freshman Kristin Funsch.

Even traditional classes such as English and History have new twists this year. Long, tedious research papers have been replaced by new and exciting autobiographies. In History classes, teachers try to show the lighter side of our ancestory. "We learn about our history and backround." states Junior Joe Barrows.

Academics are more than just classes, they help us define our strengths and weaknesses and help us to develop INFINITE WISDOM.

Amy Benink chooses to complete her English assignment during study hall instead of finishing it at home.

During Mr. Venuti's English class, Senior Jeff Pritchard puts on his Court Jester's hat to inspire a new holiday in his Writing Sample.

After finishing his experiment on candle burning, Sophomore Doug Dutra takes advantage of some spare time to record his results and answer the lab questions.

While waiting for Ethics class to begin, Senior Laura Jastrem takes some time to look over her notes for her upcoming debate.

Senior Jeff Devine takes some time before his next class to compare notes with Senior Eric Schleman on Mr. Day's latest discussion, the human brain.

Extra! Extra!

"In the Library and Math Lab, someone is always there to help you," believes Sophomore Tara O'Connor. Other places offer a pleasant environment to pursue your studies, such as the Writing Center or the Language Lab.

Whether in the Writing Center, the Math Lab, or the Library, students don their. . .

Thinking Caps

"Study? Isn't that the free period I have? No, seriously. Studying is just one of the many things I do that I don't want to," states Senior Leslie Mastone. Although MHS students have extremely busy schedules, they realize they need to periodically hit the books.

How long do students actually spend on their studies? Freshman Amy Cournoyer comments, "About two hours a night," while Freshman Mike Burns studies, "When I have time."

Many students admitted to occasionally spending hours studying for exams or tests. Senior Megan Shuffleton states, "I always put off studying until the night before and cram in my room with relaxing music."

How do people study? Everyone has his or her own special technique. "I talk out loud to my dogs, while studying 20th Century, and I make these things called study guides," explains Sophomore Kelly Johnson. But other students have more creative methods to their madness. Senior Jim Fasino claims, "I don't study—I go on instinct."

Art is a Man's Name

. . . and a way to express freedom and individuality.

The bodies above the cabinets, the skeleton in the closet, and the lobster trap. Sounds odd, doesn't it? Where is this place? According to Ms. Whilhelmson, "It's where your ideas are accepted." It's the Art Room.

The Art Room represents different things to different people. For Ms. Iovieno, the Art Room compares to her sculpture. She replies, "It's like an organic thing--ever -changing. I hate borders and limits, so the Art Room is a place with a safety net of respect and caring."

Senior Melanie Morganti agrees, "You can forget your worries there."

Others like the decor. Filled with paintings and sculptures, the room blends everything from modern to classical art in a variety of mediums. Junior Lisa Mace reveals, "You look at all the things other people have done over the years. It's weird how things have changed."

Another appealing aspect is the freedom. "You can go at your own pace," claims Freshman Jennifer Buck while Sophomore Matt Miller likes to move around. "You can get up - you're not stationary," he reports.

Whether you like the relaxed atmosphere, the freedom or the unusual objects lying around, the Art Room caters to everyone. Sophomore Lisa Orchard believes, "Everyone's an individual in the Art Room."

Throwing a Pot

What a strange name for making a pot! Despite the odd phrase, many students enter the ceramics class every year. Senior Sue Macaione suggests, "If you are stressed, just wedge some clay."

To show the difference between the values of gray, Sophomore Will Pellegrini paints in gray lines.

Senior Michael Jensen finishes drawing in his sketchbook so he can pass it in at the end of class.

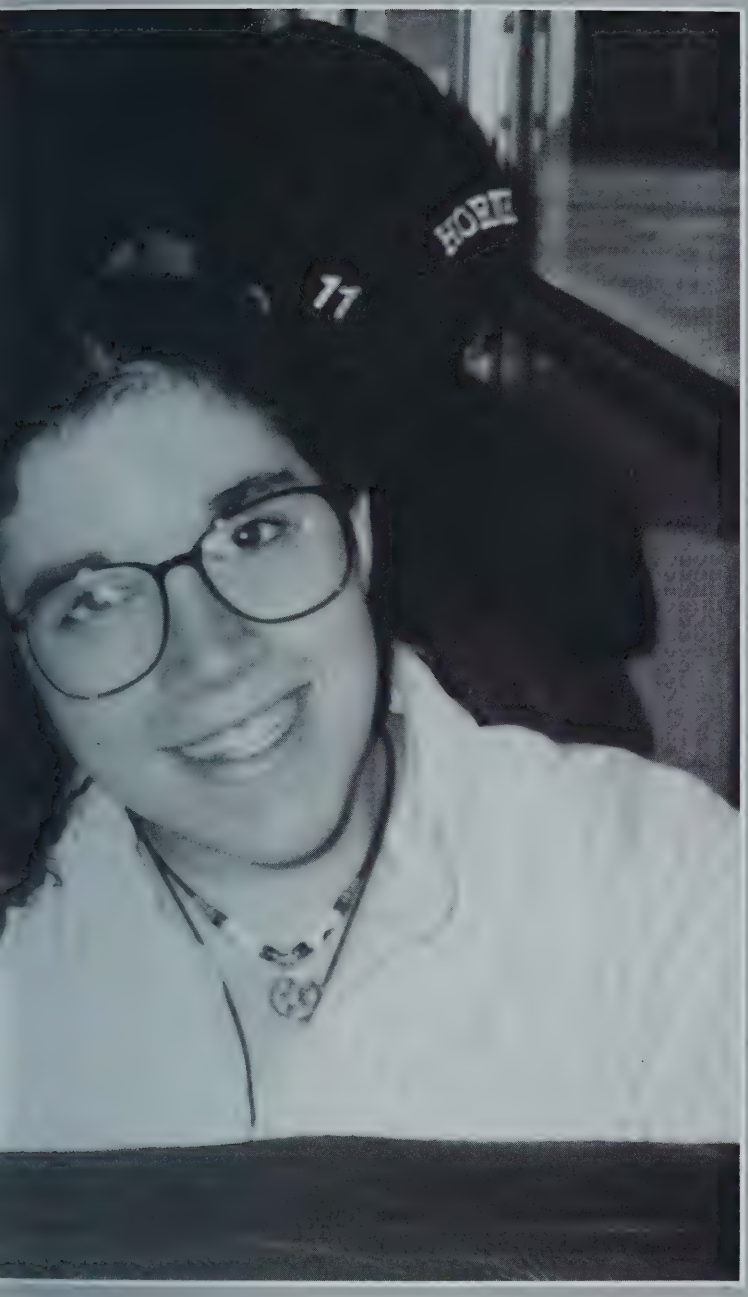
With great precision, Freshman Dan Wright perfects his drawing of the black and white still life for Art 1.

Spanish exchange student Sonia Rodiguez Rebella and Senior Sue Macaione developed a special bond that created a wonderful friendship between the two.

On the annual trip to the Bayside Expo, Spanish Teacher Suni Gonzales showed her host Mrs. Donahue a Spanish dance.

"Are you ticklish?" asked Lidia Palacio. It seems that she asked everyone that question, but she stopped tickling Sophomore Doug Dutra long enough to have her picture taken.

It appears that the exchange students made many friends during their stay in America. Rosi, Lidia, and Sonia get into a big group hug with Seniors Sabrina Greenfield, Kristin Shaver, Kerri Santsaver, Sue Macaione, and Sophomore Patrick DesChamps.



With lots of fun and laughter, the Spanish and American students became great. . .

Friends!

Hola, tuvieramos un tiempo divertido con los estudiantes espanoles cuando vinieron a los Estados Unidos. For people who don't speak Spanish and did not encounter the five exchange students, it says "Hi, we had a great time with the Spanish students when they came to the United States."

For three weeks in the fall, six MHS students gained a new sibling. It was an adventure that no one will ever forget. Senior Sue Macaione remembers, "Everytime we went shopping, I had to drag Sonia out of every clothing store."

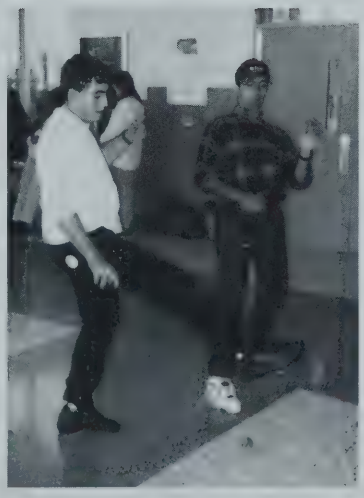
At the beginning, everyone seemed a little apprehensive about having a strange person living in their home, but after three weeks no one wanted them to leave. Senior Sabrina Greenfield reveals, "I wanted Lidia to lose her passport."

Although only six people hosted, eleven will enjoy three weeks in Spain. "I'm excited and nervous," confessed Junior Leah Tobin, "I don't speak Spanish very well but I want to go.

As the only male visiting Spain, Junior Josh Perry admits some of his reservations, "I'm not too excited about being the only guy there."

As the countdown begins, the students move to a new homeroom, arrange for passports, and purchase pesatas. Spanish teacher Mrs. Donahue describes the group's feelings best, "We're leaving in a week, and we're excited."

During the three week stay, everyone exposed the exchange students to American customs with everything from Pop Tarts to Roller Blading. Isaac and Luis tried to master the hacky-sack. Although he had some trouble, Isaac thought it was, "cool."



Although running Little Hornets Nursery School looks like just a lot of fun and games, the student teachers aren't just...

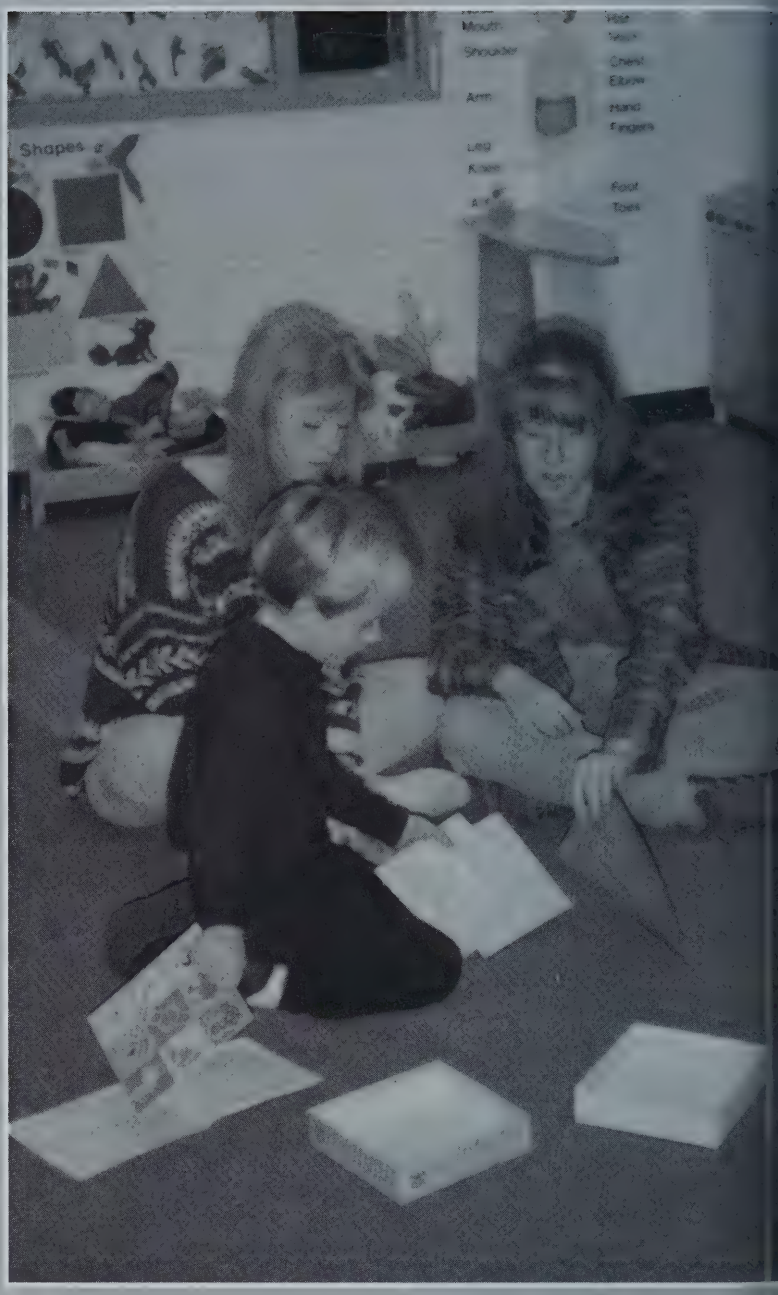
Playing Around

Coloring, toys, and circle time. Many students haven't thought about these activities since they left nursery school. Yet for Juniors and Seniors who elect to take pre-school lab management, this is their homework every night. Imagine picking out games to play instead of studying for that trig test? Sounds great, but it's not easy. The students switch roles and become teachers. They learn everything from cleaning the playroom to planning the curriculum.

"It's interesting to watch the kids. When I teach, I'll be focusing on the Chinese, Jewish and traditional New Years," states Senior Donna Bokoske.

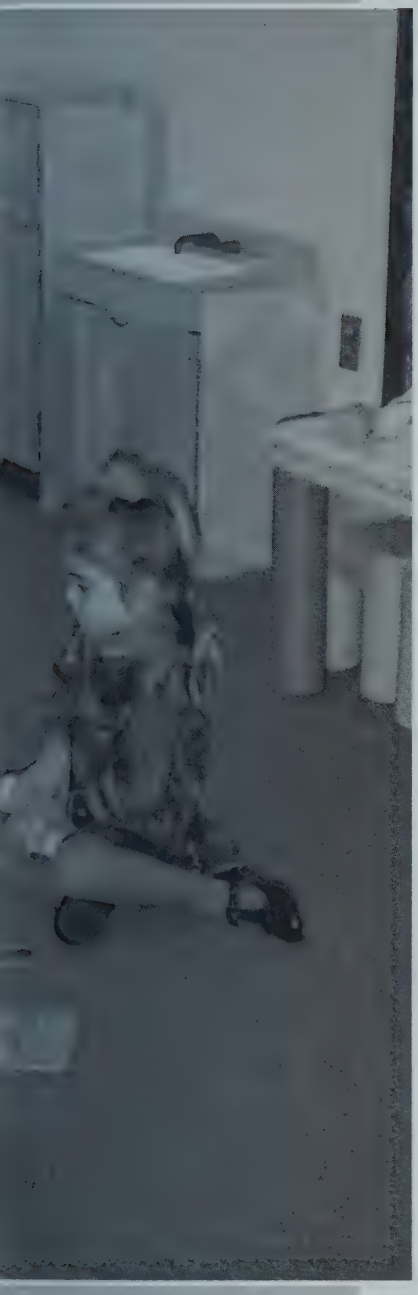
Although Little Hornets seems like other nursery schools in many ways, exceptions do exist. Unlike high school classes with a thirty to one ratio, fifteen student teachers work with the children each period allowing a one on one relationship with the kids.

Everyone has different reasons why they chose to be part of Little Hornets. Some were in it for an easy grade, others for the fun. However Senior Amy Johnson sums up everyone's feelings exclaiming, "I chose to because I love the kids!"



A Ricebox?

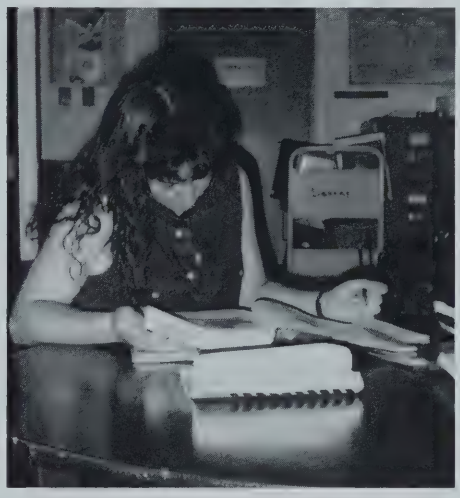
Instead of a sandbox, the Little Hornets play in a ricebox. Junior Maureen Downey recalls a time when they used to fill it with styrofoam peanuts. She laughs, "Because of static cling, we had to vacuum the kids."



During the morning session at Little Hornets, Casey Pipes, Junior Amanda Ridlon, Senior Sheri Arapoff and Kathleen Ezersky gather together on the carpet in the playroom to play a board game.

Teacher, Junior Katelynn O'Brien, and Preschooler, Brian Sylvester, express their creativity as they draw on the chalkboard after the structured activities of the day are completed.

Taking advantage of the quiet found in the library after school, Junior Juliane Murray prepares activities for her week of teaching.



Teacher Junior Kristin Conti is all smiles as she clowns around inside the tube tunnel while waiting in the Little Hornets playroom for the children to arrive for the day.

As she approaches the net, Senior Lisa Sarro bites down on her lip and gets ready to shoot the ball into the goal.

Before the upcoming meet, Senior Jared Forget and Junior Adam Briggs stretch their muscles on the grass near the Cross Country track.

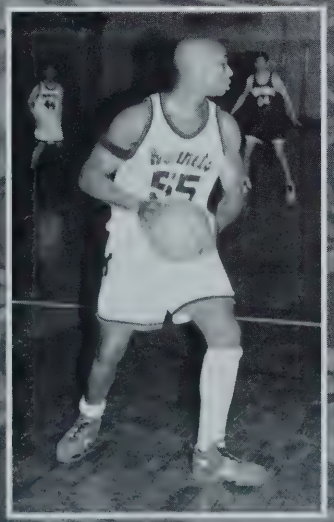
Going In Circles

At MHS, the sports teams have continued to have great success.

Hockomock League Champion Tennis Team, Superbowl Champs, Best Golf season in history. It seems that this year's sports teams have performed superbly. As well as acheiving titles, they have improved their teams both physically and mentally. The Ice Hornets emerged causing quite a stir, the Volleyball team split and created a varsity and junior varsity team, and the Cross Country team made great strides by creating a girls' team. Mansfield seems full of students who are making great accomplishments. The cheerleaders have a new coach who is helping them snap back from some bad falls and win their competitions. Also with new coaches, the girls' basketball teams continue to strive for excellence. Even the old diehards like soccer, track and field hockey have improved through the year.

As for going in circles, the only circles these teams travel around are circles of victory. Sophomore Tamara Humphries continually insists, "We are obviously gonna win because we're Mansfield."



Before shooting the ball, Senior Kerry Taylor looks behind himself and checks to make sure no one is creeping up from behind.

Squaring off at center court, Freshman Chris Sereda tries to take the puck away from his opponent.

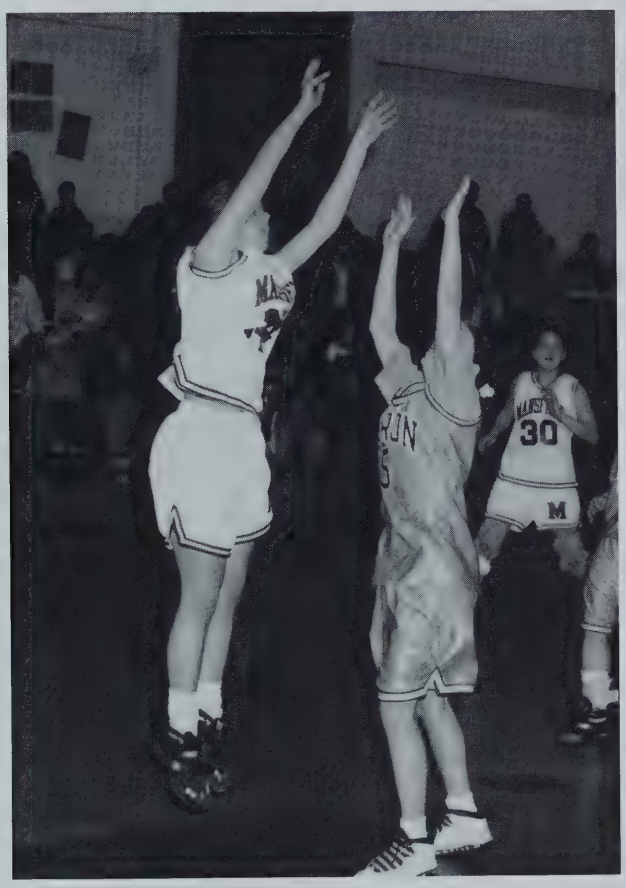
Eyeing the ball, Freshman Rachel Zabala prepared to volley the ball back over the net.

Third Row: Coach Levine, Nicole Smith, Shauna Arapoff, Danielle Patchett, Sarah Cunnicgham, Heather Nary, Tricia Haddigan, Jen Fitch, Coach Tighe. Second Row: Jen Carey, Adrienne Dybes, Jessica Dunn, Kate Flanagan, Stacey Sheridan, Nicole Epstein. First Row: Chien Wen Tong, Alison Creeden, Carmel O'Connor (holding Danny), Laurie Cooper, Michelle Duclos.

Just because they are the youngest members of the sports' teams doesn't mean that they don't give it 150%. In fact they give the team a. . .

A New Outlook



As the lowest rung on the ladder, one might assume that freshmen don't have many advantages in sports at MHS. Yet they are people who will go on and set their own records and win their own Hockomock titles. Teams have realized this and have prepared. In fact, the basketball teams have a separate team just for freshmen. Meanwhile, the volleyball team had to split in half because of so many players. Freshman Laura Ottaviani explains, "We just learned the basic game, and we improved."

Leaping over a Sharon player, Freshman Nicole Smith receives the ball and slams it into the net.

Junior Captain Cat Henderson goes airborne leading the pack early in a race while concentrating on her running form.

Junior Brigdet Dolezsar's smile reflects both the solitary nature of her sport and the enthusiasm the team is able to generate. Who said running can't be fun?!

Toward the end of the race, Captain Jarod Forget speeds up and pushes to the finish line.

First Row: Coach Morales, Cat Henderson, Liz Cregg, Temeka Green.

With great determination, the Cross Country team has stayed for. . .

The Long Haul

A light breeze floats through the trees, clouds dot the azure sky, and tiny birds chirp from their perches. It is a perfect fall day. Suddenly a group of girls pass through this serene spot. In a flash, they are gone. In many wooded areas such as these, cross country runners sprint through headed for the finish line.

At MHS, Cross Country has become a fast growing sport. In fact this year, a girls team formed. Junior Elizabeth Cregg states one reason why. "It gave me an opportunity to improve for winter track."

As for the boys, they held their own. Senior Captain Jarod Forget swells with pride as he explains the season's developement. "I feel as though we improved at every meet."

Through what many would classify a long season, a hard working boys' team and a growing girls' team showed steady improvement. Judging by this year's successes, big achievements are next for this expanding team.

First Row: Coach Morales, Paul Phadunghi, Jarod Forget, Dave Simpson, Adam Briggs.

Fore!

Complete with publicity, the golf team challenges everyone and becomes the best team in MHS history.

A hush falls over the green. The ball sits there motionless only three feet from the hole. The golfer takes off his hat, looks at the ball then the hole, and puts his hat back on again. He carefully reviews his clubs, chooses one, and takes a practice swing. Then, he carefully lines up the ball with the hole and prepares to shoot. Suddenly, he taps the ball into the hole, and the crowd cheers. With this hole over, he remembers that there are only seventeen left to go.

Although people think golf is dull, Senior Captain Jim Fasino insists that it's a great sport. "This was the best season in MHS history. We got a lot of publicity. People I didn't even know came up to me in the supermarket and asked about the team."

All the fame didn't go to their heads. On the contrary, Junior Dan Bonneyman declares, "It was a good team, and we had lots of fun playing."

Freshman Jeremy Davidson

As the ball whizzes away, Junior Nick Dei watches where it lands hoping it will be near the hole.

With his ball only a few inches away from the hole, Junior John Faria sinks it in and makes the par.

Sailing his ball into the air, Junior Jon Gannon watches as it lands four feet away from the hole.

"Go in," hopes Junior Pat Folan as he hits the ball. Suddenly the ball lands in the hole and Pat breathes a sigh of relief.

Junior Syagean Chang stops the ball and hits it back up to one of her teammates.

On the sidelines, Junior Kaitlinn Hoffman cheers as the team wins their first game of the season against Sharon.

Junior Nichole Price and Senior Jean Carter run the ball down the field and try to score against Canton.

Lucky Charms

There are no pink hearts or blue diamonds, just a bunch of field hockey players who are very superstitious.

It all started out as a harmless joke. Coach Levine figured out that Coach Hill moved her car right when the team lost a big match. Ever since then, she parks her car in the same place when they are winning, and she moves her car to a new spot if they lose.

Now most of the players are superstitious. Senior Melanie Kostaras admits, "I wear a hair scrunchie that matches my kilt to every game."

She isn't the only one who is superstitious. "I keep a lucky penny in my sock," laughs Senior Kelly Richard.

Whether it's a rabbit's foot or a penny seems irrelevant. Let's just hope these charms give the team the best of luck.

A spectacular season unfolds for the football team leading them to. . .

Victory!

"I get by with a little help from my friends," blares through the stands. A bright, sunny afternoon, a 50-50 raffle, the enticing smell of hot dogs and nachos, loud and enthusiastic fans on both sides of the field, and opposing teams---each garbed in their own colors dominated by green. Is this just another early season contest? Or is it an unseasonably warm late Fall face-off against arch rival, Foxboro? No, that was the penultimate victory ten days earlier! This is the SUPERBOWL and as Senior Rob Smith understates, "We're prepared. Coach Redding, the whole team knows we're ready."

Indeed, the Hornets are ready. It seems they've been ready all season and demonstrate it time after time against strong opponents. The mid-season loss against league rival, Attleboro, only serves to renew the team's focus. The rest of the season sets the stage for the biggest victory of the year and a super celebration.

In summarizing the game, Senior Fred Vallett shows championship spirit. "We did it as a team. Everyone did their part. It's an incredible feeling!"

High Jinks!

At camp, the Boys Soccer Team made many memories and played even more jokes.

"All I see is Cody Dublanica stealing a go-cart and going down a hill," laughs Junior Steve Nangle.

Most of the soccer players have similar memories from their days at camp. "I recall exchanging shorts with Matt Volo in the woods," adds Senior Dave Touloumtzis.

Even though improving their soccer skills was the main reason for going to camp, the players still had plenty of time to have fun and get in a little trouble. In fact, these pranks helped the team get to know each other better. Sophomore James Morris remembers, "Taping Freshman Justin Sliney to the bed."

When they got back home, the team played hard. Even though their record wasn't perfect, the MHS soccer team played their hearts out. Their summer fun created a strong bond that the players will always remember.

Goal!

Even without the Spanish announcer, the girl's soccer team managed to score.

"Soccer is the best sport ever invented," declares Junior Stacey Mullin. The girls soccer team had a rough season as far as scoring goes, but the entire team worked hard. "I think we grew as a team," insists Junior Sarah Scarchilli. "There was a lot of hard work and dedication."

After playing as long as they did, a lot of the players became friends. "Everyone really improved. We grew closer as a team because we played together so long," believes Senior Megan Shuffleton.

Faced with difficulty this season, the girls soccer team played hard 'til the end. However, Senior Captain Meghann Smith looks towards the positive. She states very simply, "We had fun."

Amy Cornoyer falls to the floor to dig the ball to one of her fellow players.

As the ball sails over the net, Sophomore Kristen Connell hits it back to the opposing team.

After rotating, Junior Sarah Bolton sets up to serve the ball over the net.

Gathering her troops around her, Coach Lorraine Weymouth gives a pep talk before the game starts.

Digging In

In their first year on Varsity, the MHS Volleyball team jumped into action and worked hard all season.

Whoever said 'winning isn't everything' must have known the true grit of Mansfield's Volleyball team. In its second season, the team learned many things. Senior Captain Jen Darling believes, "Volleyball is both physically and mentally challenging."

The challenge spurred the team to rally behind each other and stick together. By the end of the season the team's enthusiasm had reached new heights. "We are going to be tougher next year," Sophomore Kendra Fisher explains, "but a lot more will be expected from us."

Falling to the ground, Junior Stacy St. Laurent digs the ball over to the other side scoring a point for her team.

Cheerleading is like life, it has its. . .

Ups & Downs

"Is she alright?"

"What happened?"

At the beginning of the cheerleading season, two of the cheerleaders fell during the fall rallies. Yet the cheerleaders don't believe that this hurt the team. Sophomore Robin Martin insists, "The falls are just our nerves in front of big crowds."

After dusting themselves off following the accidents, the cheerleaders had a rigorous season. In fact Freshman Nicole Breen thinks, "If cheerleading was any easier, it would be called football."

Even with the tough beginnings, the MHS cheerleaders managed terrific performances and kept the crowds cheering. But Freshman Rachel Burgio admits the one problem with cheerleading. She explains, "There aren't enough guys."

Sophomores Michelle Miele, Hollis Dewey, and Junior Kristy Sliney celebrate another Hornet touchdown at the the Superbowl game.

On the sidelines, Sophomore Robin Martin claps as the Hornets score another touchdown.

In front of the bandstand, Senior Gina Flammia encourages the Hornets to make a touchdown at the Homecoming game.

"Go! Fight! Win!" shouts Senior Andrea Restaino trying to rally the people in the stands.

Top: Devon Moran, Mandy Gandolfo, Aprill Fasino. Middle: Tina DiGiampietro, Angela Gartman, Jenn Mantia, Sarah Briggs, Rachel Burgio, Christin Wood, Kelly Brides. Bottom: Shanna O'Leary.

Trying to put the Hornets ahead, Sophomore Amy Beaudoin concentrates on the hoop and prepares to shoot.

Sophomore Kelly Armstrong prevents a Sharon player from receiving the ball. Then she ducks under her opponent and dribbles the ball up the court.

At the sideline, Freshman Elissa Noonan looks for a teammate who can catch the ball and make a basket.

Even when the coaches changed, the girls' basketball teams stayed...

Focused!

NEWSFLASH!

Varsity Coach Don Edmunston resigned from his post letting Coach Rachel Routhier move up from JV. Suddenly, Coach Theresa DeGirolamo replaced Routhier and started working with the JV team. Then,with a vacant spot on the Freshman team, new faculty member Tom Keane took charge.

"I think it was worthwhile. In the beginning it was frustrating, but Coach Routhier was a good coach. The other teams didn't know what to expect from her," insists Junior Amy Beaudoin.

For other players, the transition was more difficult. "I played half the season on freshman and the other half on JV," states Freshman Stacey Sheridan. "It was harder to adjust."

Even though they had to adapt to new coaches, they had fun. Sophomore Tracy Dunn exclaims, "It was exhilarating."

High Hopes

With lots of determination, the Boys' Basketball team tried to fulfill their dreams.

NEWSFLASH!

School records broken on Boys' Basketball team. Seniors Jason Adams and Kerry Taylor broke two records apiece. Adams for points in a game and three point percentage. Taylor for most rebounds and highest field goal percentage.

Record breaking wasn't the only thing the boys' basketball team accomplished this year. Early in the season, the team went into a tailspin by losing their first three games. Undaunted in their second meeting, the Hornets thrashed Foxboro. Then, they beat King Philip by twenty points. They finally had their edge back.

Although the 6-14 record indicates a tough year, Senior Captain Fred Vallett disagrees. He insists, "As the season wore on, we improved."

Although the team didn't win the Hockomock League title, they did something else explains Senior Jason Adams. He states "I think everyone really enjoyed playing the game they love."

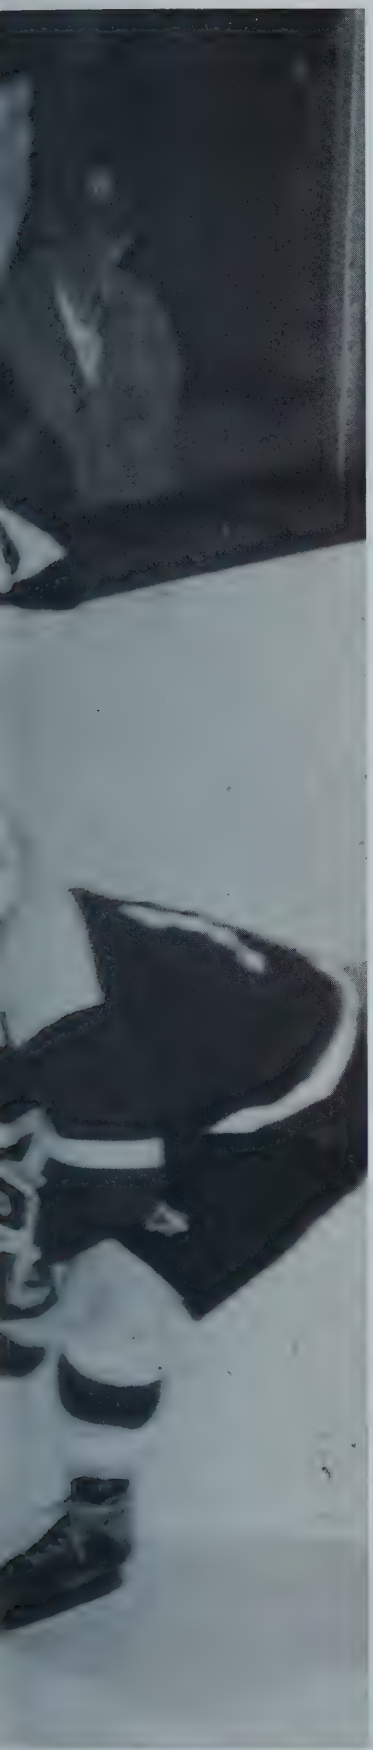
Freshman Bryan Gurnan skates into the corner and fights to retrieve the puck from his opponent.

Before the game, Freshman Rob Mc Laughlin warms up by taking practice shots.

While heading down the rink, Freshman Steve Guilfoy fends off his Stoughton opponent, then takes a shot.

Guarding the goal, Sophomore Jeff Schmidt hopes his team-mates can drive the puck back up to the other end of the rink.



Even though the beginning started out rough, the MHS Ice Hornets...

Triumphed!

The Mansfield Ice Hornets made history when they stepped out on the ice in November. The sluggish and inexperienced JV team started their season with a tie to Stoughton. Senior Captain Andy Bonin insists, "We played a real hard, physical game.

Even with tough opposition, the determined team created a very distinguishable record. Coach Conti states, "I'm proud of these kids, they hung in there, and they are stepping up to a higher level."

Yet, the record can't show all the effort these players put into every game. "It didn't matter if you had to get up at 3:00 in the morning or go to bed at 8:00," explains Freshman Chris Sereda, "but it takes lots of discipline and devotion."

As for the fate of the Ice Hornets, only time will tell. Sophomore Goalie Jeff Schmidt declares, "I'm very happy for my team."

After a hard race, Junior Adam Briggs approaches the finished line feeling that he has done his best.

After the race, Freshman Mike Tierney smiles when he realizes that he has beat his personal time.

As he leaps over the first hurdle successfully, Junior Aaron Morse feels confident about the race.

Freshman Jeff Caturano sits on the floor outside the gym and checks to make sure his shoe is tied before heading to practice.

With a North Attleboro runner hot on her heels, Senior Meghann Smith pushes in front and takes the lead.

Sophomore Jill Schlotterback hurls the shot put in the air and hopes she has thrown farther than her opponents.

Hoping to beat her personal best, Senior Gina Flammia flings her body over the bar and lands on the mat.

In the last leg of the relay race, Freshman Adrienne Dybes sprints ahead and crosses the finish line.

Leaders of the Pack

"Come on. Stretch those muscles. You can do it!"

No, it is not the sadistic aerobics instructor at the local gym pushing you to warm up. It's the captains of the sports teams. Although being a captain seems great, looks can be deceiving. Senior Meghann Smith explains, "This year was hard (for the girls' soccer team) because we didn't have a good record. It was hard to keep everyone positive."

Heading a team isn't all bad; it has its perks. In fact, most captains enjoy their work. Senior Katie Begley declares, "I like it because I want to be a role model for underclassmen."

It may seem like just fun and games, but every captain works hard. "We have to know how to count to ten," laughs Senior Kasey Cournoyer, "but we also have to organize pasta dinners and keep the team motivated."

Senior Fred Vallett misses a hit by an opponent and shows how good the team has become.

Well-Rounded

Although many people play sports or have jobs after school, they still manage to participate in after school activities.

"I'd rather be busy than bored," comments Freshman Dave Pierce.

Many students agree that MHS has an abundance of activities ranging from the small yet well established Band to the gigantic and very popular Science Club.

Students are often surprised by the number of opprtunities open to them.

"It shocked me when I got to high school because in middle school there are not many things to do after school," states Junior Kristin Conti, "It made me want to get involved in everything."

In these clubs, students find things to do but they also make friendships that will last a lifetime. Junior Tina Lantz explains, "Everyone in the band is good friends."

While Sophomore Kristen Calvin responds, "Although we're doing something constructive, we socialize."

For some individuals, activities become an extension of who they are. Sophomore Mary Ann Tomase believes, "Band is the biggest part of my life. It's how I express myself. It's a part of me."

Also, Senior Jeff Pritchard feels, "Music is what I want to do with my life. I've been playing for six years."

Even though different aspects of the clubs attract students, most agree with Freshman Derek Hansen who exclaims, "We have a lot of fun."

In the band room, Senior Chris Crockett plays his saxophone to practice for his next competition.

At the blackboard, Eighth grader Jarod Goldman demonstrates the difficult geometric problem to the upperclassmen on the Math team.

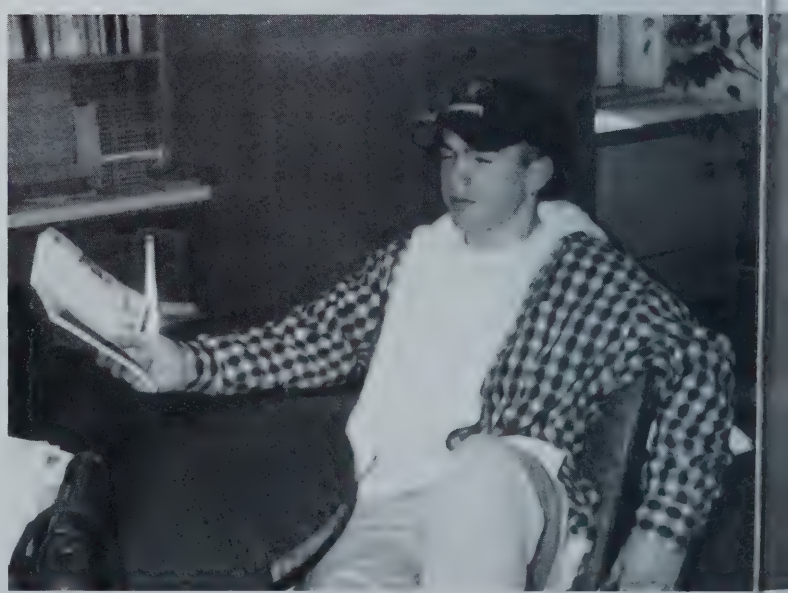
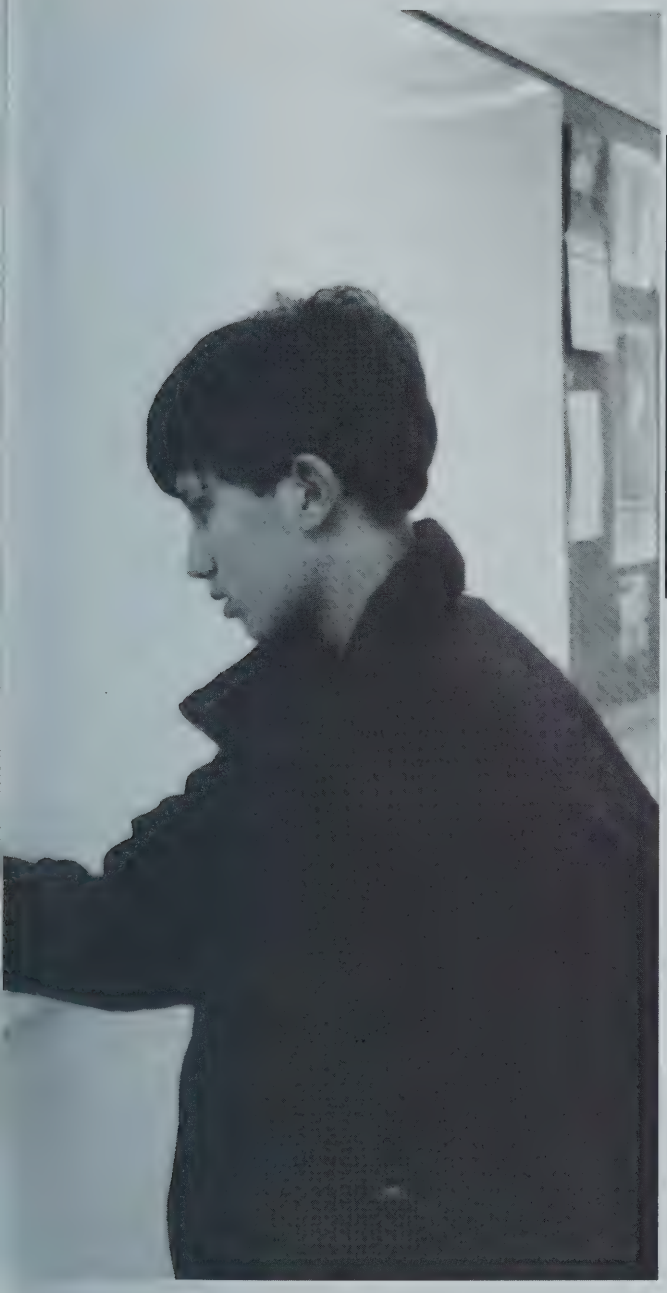
While listening to Mr. Perry explain meiosis, Senior Dave Touloumtzis tries to catch a few winks.





As the Academic Decathlon and Math Team prepare for their meets, they use a variety of food for. . .

Brain Power

When most people think of the Math Team and Academic Decathlon, they probably envision a bunch of nerds sitting around making logarithm jokes. Yet Decathlon member Senior Laura Jastrem disagrees. "I have a lot of fun," she declares, "we joke around and eat snacks."

It seems that the motivation behind these young minds is food. Junior Stacey Mullin laughs, "We take Math tests and eat free cookies."

If food fuels the minds and stomachs of these students, it's no wonder both teams competed well. Senior Dave Touloumtzis recalls a very easy match. "We showed up, ate cookies, drank milk then found out there weren't any questions."

By the time the hungry Math team finished, they won first place. As for the Academic Decathlon, they placed twelfth in the state. At a meet, Sophomore Kelly Johnson describes her favorite moment. "Dave Touloumtzis made fun of Mr. Perry's jello, then snorted some up his nose."

Sophomore Neal Patel gives his latest exam to Mr. Barnes and Mrs. Zangari.

Whether you join the Academic Decathlon or the Math Team you can eat until your heart is content.

"YOU CAN QUOTE ME ON THAT!"

"We went to Wendy's everyday before Decathlon."

Senior Elisa Manberg

"They give us chocolate chip cookies and milk from the cafeteria."

Both the French and Spanish Clubs have delved into activities inspiring their. . .

Cultural Awareness

"48, 49, 50, everyone is here," shouts Senora Donahue as the bus pulls out of MHS full of French and Spanish Club members headed for the Bayside Expo to see the International Festival.

Freshman Shana O'Leary offers some of the chocolate truffles the French Club made to people in the hall.

"We went to booths and got our passports stamped from different countries," states Freshman Greg Holt.

Although both groups went to the Festival, they also participated in individual activities. French students cooked choocolate truffles for Christmas and decorated masks for Mardi Gras. "I loved making the truffles," indicates Freshman Monique Willey, "I made a mess, but it was a lot of fun."

The Spanish Club had its own agenda. Sophomore Christine Whitty described how members constructed a pinata out of papier-mache for their Christmas party. "We ripped up paper and put our hands in goopy stuff. Then we put it over a balloon."

All these exciting activites have kept students busy. Senior Kerri Santsaver believes, "The energy and enthusiasm during the clubs' activities made this a great year. We all had alot of fun!"

"YOU CAN QUOTE ME ON THAT!"

"Yeah, I liked making the pinata."

Sophomore Neal Patel

"I put sequins, feathers, and sparkly shaped things on my mask for Mardi Gras. It was really fun."

Spanish Club member Junior Josh Perry samples some of the food at the International Festival. His favorite, the pretzel.

Shakin' It Up

With zany morning announcements and crazy antics during homeroom, the National Honor Society has changed its facade.

"This is Chris in the morning on WMHS--please rise for the pledge." Seniors Chris Crockett and Hilary Cheyne have created an interesting, if not strange approach to the morning messages. Chris insists, "Usually no one pays attention to the announcements, but this way everyone listens."

After the announcements, speaking at the NHS induction is a piece of cake for Senior Chris Crockett.

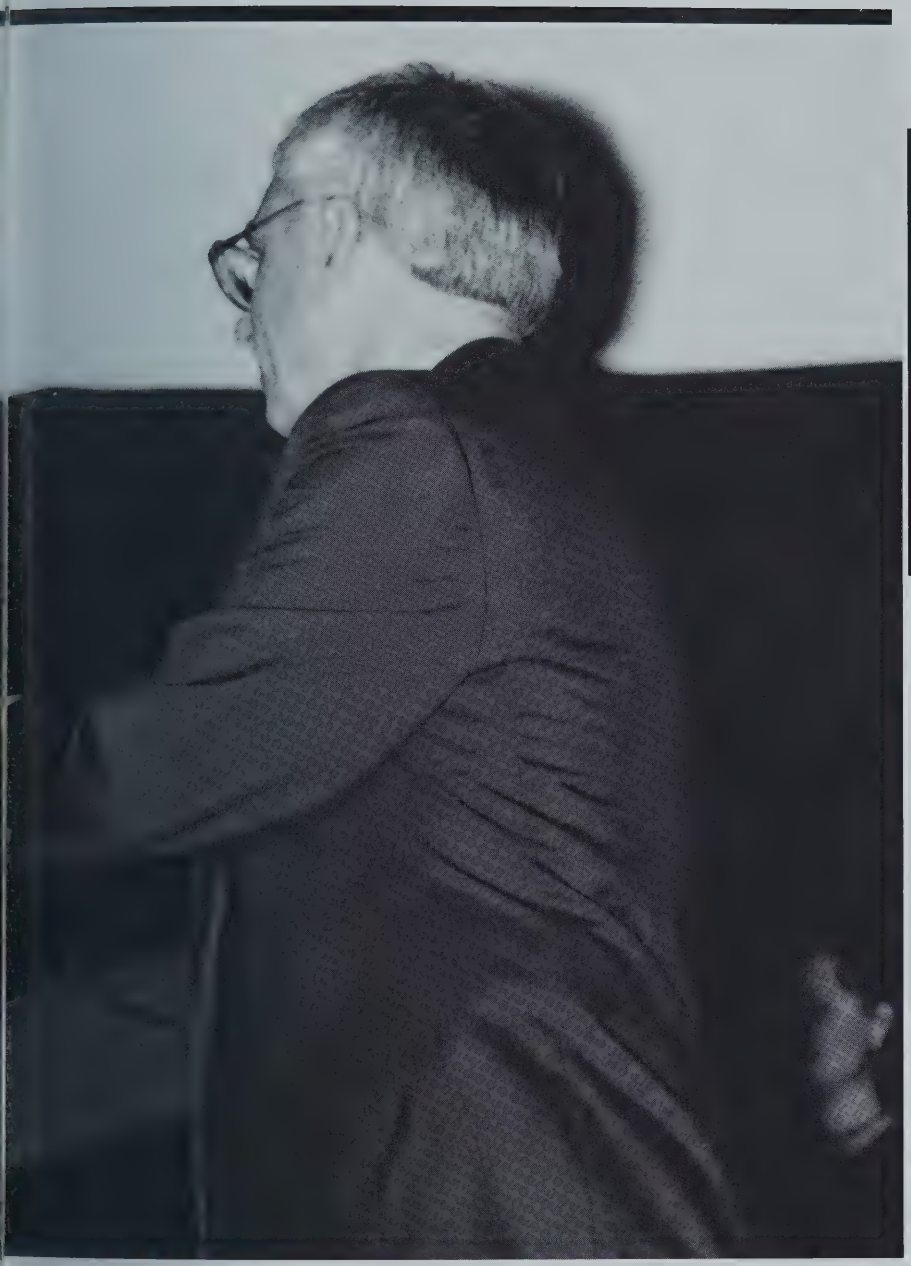
When people think about the benefits of belonging to the National Honor Society, they usually think about getting out of study or not needing a pass. Yet, they forget one important aspect. For five minutes every day, NHS students congregate in room 206, home of Ms. Wood.

Room 206 looks like any other homeroom, but there is one difference. "We're like a family," states Senior Samantha Stowell.

Usually one can find little groups discussing various topics from baseball to the MHS newspaper. "It's entertaining," laughs Senior Jackie Publicover.

When the bell rings some students exit left others right, but they share one common bond, each will ultimately return to room 206 at 8:34 the next day.

As pictures flash above her, Junior Maureen Downey lights the candle which inducts her into the National Honor Society.



Junior Dave Dybes accepts his NHS card from Mr. Rosa and then receives his pin from Ms. Wood after lighting his candle.

"YOU CAN QUOTE ME ON THAT!

"I like homeroom because all my friends are in it, and we get to do the announcements."
Senior Andrea Restaino

"I love sitting next to Jason Adams."

Fourth Row: Stacey Mullin, Marygilda McDonald, Maureen Downey, Katelynn O'Brien, Kerri Dingivan, Kristen Wheeler, Ericka Tucker, Mike Widrow, Aaron Morse, Paul Tartufo, Dave Dybes, Kevin Fitzgibbon, Mike Foss, John Gannon, Juliane Murray. Third Row: Syagean Chang, Angela Powers, Elizabeth Cregg, Katie Steele, Nicole Forbes, Nichole Price, Jon Pierce, Cat Henderson, Tina Lantz, Katie Begley, Gina Flammia, Jackie Publicover, Leslie Mastone, Elizabeth Amoruso, Debbie Palie. Second Row: Kelly Makris, Jon Corliss, John O'Neil, Kristin Conti, Melanie Morganti, Kerri Santsaver, Elisa Manberg, Dave Touloumtzis, Chris Crockett, Hilary Cheyne, Kerri Dempsey, Sabrina Greenfield, Shannon Steinmetz, Samantha Stowell. First Row: Andrea Restaino, Jason Adams, Laura Jastrem.

As one of the few seniors inducted, Senior Steve Medieros proudly lights his candle and becomes part of the National Honor Society.

In the courtyard, Sophomore Jean Publicover crouches in the bushes to clean up the leaves and prune the branches.

Hide & Seek

Although the Science Club seems to have disappeared, they still exist and continue to work hard in the school.

"We plant flowers and we recycle," stated Freshman Adanna Walker plainly when asked what the science club did this year.

Even though they rarely held meetings, they still managed to plant 500 daffodils, continue the recycling program, and take a trip to the Museum of Science.

"I liked never having to stay after school for meetings," admits Senior Akta Sindhal.

"I held the bag for weeds," declares Freshman Keith Mainones at the Fall Planting.

For this grand occasion, the Science Club dug up rakes, shovels, and lots of assorted tools. With about thirty or forty devoted individuals, they transformed the school grounds into well manicured estate.

Next, the Science club ventured to Boston. "The musical stairs were neat," remarks Sophomore Jeanne Kenaley.

Playing in the dirt, Sophomore Jeanne Kenaley digs holes for the daffodils.

However and whenever they meet seems insignificant because Mrs. Liljegren feels, "To me the most important thing is you get all sorts of people together."

Watch Out! Here comes Senior Beth Dahlstrom ready to sweep up the mess from the Fall Planting.

The Student Council revamped its style and with some new ideas became. . .

Spirited Leaders

Rejuvination describes the new Student Council. First, Ms. DeGirolamo became a new advisor. Then, they made some adjustments to run it more efficiently.

Appearing at rallys, Sophomore Saraan Mahmoud inspires school spirit.

"We changed the meetings to every other Monday," explains Senior President Katie Begley, "it seemed to work out, because there is a lot of enthusiasm."

"We have new Spirit Competitions such as the Penny War," adds Senior Treasurer Jen O'Brien.

Throwing out tradition, the Student Council voted to turn the Holly Ball into a semi-formal dance. "We changed DJs but her speakers blew out," Junior Kristin Conti remembers, "so we danced to her portable radio."

"It was more organized and better maintained," adds Sophomore Dipesh Mukerji, "it also had more participation than last year."

The changes brought about in the Student Council bring out its true value. Freshman Kristen Funsch explains, "It gives students a chance to say what happens at MHS."

Behind the white beard and red suit lurks Senior Chris King flanked by three elves, Seniors Michelle Thurber, Jen O'Brien, and Melanie Kostaras.

Student Council Representative Carrie Conley spends her lunch collecting pennies, nickels, dimes,and quarters for the latest spirit competition, The Penny War.

"YOU CAN QUOTE ME ON THAT!

"I got down in my pie and got it all over the table. I think that's why we won. It was great, but now I'm retiring."

Senior Jim Fasino

It's a family tradition. You try to get it everywhere except your mouth.

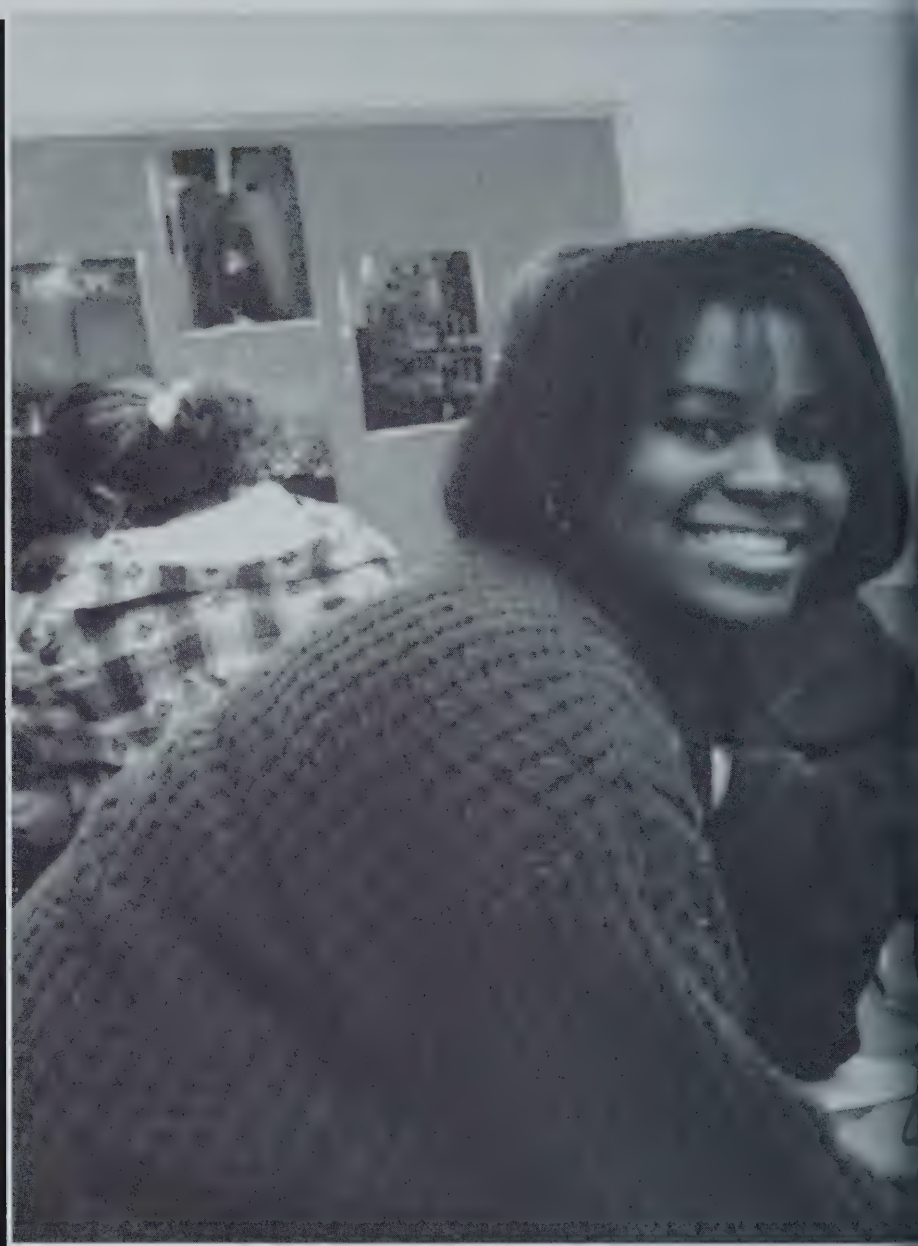
Out on the dance floor at the Holly Ball, Sophomores Dayna Garneau and Ben Cahill dance before the speakers blew.

Junior President Nicole Forbes and Junior Secretary Alyssa DiGiovanni review the song suggestions made by their class at a prom committee meeting.



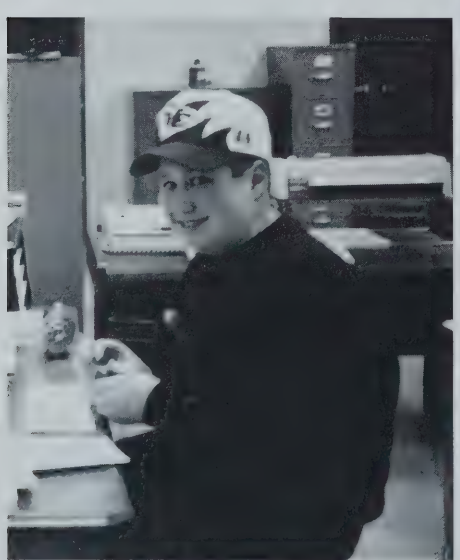
"YOU CAN QUOTE ME ON THAT!

"I like being involved and I like money. It can be nerve-wracking but we all work together."

Sophomore Treasurer Carrie Flammia

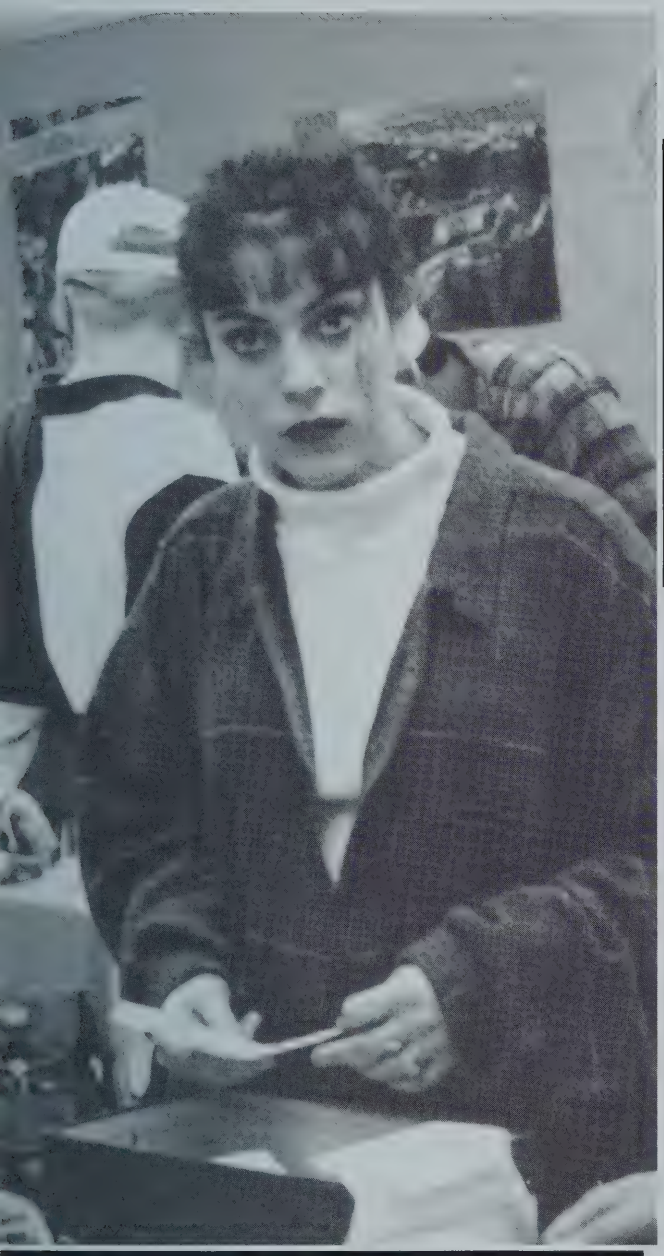
"It's a big responsibility, but the benefits showed."

Senior Secretary Al McKeever



Freshman Treasurer Jeremy Davidson adds up the money from the car wash which provided his class with money for the Homecoming float.

Second Row: Freshman Vice-President George Panagopoulos, Freshman President Dave Pierce, Junior Treasurer Jon Pierce, Junior Vice-President Sarah Scarchili, Junior President Nicole Forbes, Sophomore Treasurer Carrie Flammia, Sophomore Secretary Jackie Huggins. First Row: Senior Donna Bokoske, Senior Treasurer Amy Nelson, Senior Secretary Al McKeever, Senior Vice-President Katie Begley.



Guided by their principles as leaders of the school, class officers. . .

Take Charge

"As your class officer I hope to. . ."

Every potential class officer begins their campaign with a speech similar to this one. Whether or not they present a good speech or hand out lollipops clouds the real issue. The most important aspect of a class officer should be his or her ability to lead and his or her desire to help the class. "I wanted to change what was going on," explains Junior Secretary Alyssa DiGiovanni.

"I wanted our senior year to be awesome," asserts Senior Vice President Katie Begley.

With the elections over, the officers assumed their new positions."We needed some money, for the float so we had a quick fundraiser," recalls Freshman Treasurer Jeremy Davidson.

Hanging up posters, Sophomore President Christine Gillis advertises class rings.

Regardless of how or why they came to office, Sophomore President Christine Gillis believes, "The title is nothing, it's what you make it yourself."

In front of the library, Freshman Vice-President George Panagopoulos creates a new display on the bulletin board for the month of January.

After a rocky start, the band reached new heights and executed a. . .

Top Performance

"Mansfield Hornet Marching Band, you may take the field in competition," shouted the announcer.

"There is nothing like being on the field," admits Sophomore Carrie Conley, as the band began their routine.

Senior Hilary Cheyne surveys the band, then prepares to start the program.

With the last notes of "Auld Lang Syne", they finished their grueling competition and collapsed on the sidelines ready to watch the others perform. At the end, the judge finally declared, "Third place to Mansfield Hornet Marching Band."

"People were going crazy," laughs Senior Dave Touloumtzis.

"It was chaos," insisted Freshman Jason Colby after Mansfield won first place in percussion. "but it was a lot of work, and we deserved the reward."

Every band member remembers rising early for long, hard practices on Saturday mornings and dealing with the challenges put before them by NESBA. Still, Senior Melanie Morganti believes, "The band went through some tough times, but we stuck together and it paid off in the end."

During a free class, Senior Sean McGuire practices for the next competition in the band room.

At the Superbowl game, Seniors Dave Touloumtzis and Beth Dahlstrom take the field and begin their program during halftime.

"YOU CAN QUOTE ME ON THAT!

"Mr. Conti accidentally wrote Jen Pierce on the paper as drum major, instead of Jon."

During the Christmas season, the Choir members show their versatile talents by. . .

Acting Up

"It's a special bond," insists Sophomore Ryan Heroux, "It's knowing that you're friends with everyone but it goes beyond friendship."

Where is this special place? The choral room. Inside you see some chairs and a piano but the room itself stands for something greater; it is a place of compassion and trust. Here, students try to extend this special atmosphere to the student body as they organize their annual Christmas play. "It helps people to get into the Christmas spirit," concludes Senior Chris King.

Kicking off the play, Senior Al McKeever plays Pops and he tries to pursuade E.E. Snow, Karen Caldwell's scrooge-like character, to give them an extension on the loan for their ranch. In the end, she relents and realizes the true meaning of Christmas.

Yet to the actors who portray everyone from secretaries to cowboys, the play signifies more.

"Frosty the Snowman. . ." sings little Holly, Senior Bethany Guild's character.

Most of the choir members would agree with Junior Bridget Dolezsar who believes, "Choir is so much more than singing."

Sophomore Dave Giangarra and Senior Hilary Cheyne portray a happy couple on their honeymoon.

With popular music and an immense dedication, the Orchestra. . .

Plays a New Tune

"In Fourth grade a light appeared in my head," insists Freshman Jason Martel clutching his instrument tightly, "and I was compelled to take the viola."

Before practice starts, Junior Stacey Mullin tunes her violin.

Many others joined although they didn't have a vision like Jason. When asked why she started playing, Sophomore Stacey Whelan laughed and answered, "For the hot guys."

Indeed, the Orchestra has a marvelous sense of humor, but through all the joking a sense of dedication and comraderie emanates. "Everyday is a new challenge and the music is invigorating," declares Junior Stacey Mullin.

With fresh, new faces the Orchestra has blasted into the '90's. Popular songs and Soundtracks have replaced the days of long and dull symphonies. "We played Dracula and Jurassic Park," adds Senior Laura Jastrem.

Even though it's a small group, these people work diligently for years to perfect their talents. "It's hard," asserts Sophomore Kerrina Whelan, "but I would never quit in a million years."

At rehersal, following Ms. Van Pelt's cue Freshman Monique Willey begins playing "Bewitched" on her cello.

Sophomore Stacey Whelan practices "The Bell That Couldn't Jingle" because the Orchestra will accompany the QMS chorus at the Christmas concert.

Charge!

Animals invaded the minds of the cast of Rhinoceros creating an astonishing production.

"Grunt," replies Sophomore Casey Holford after being asked about Mr. von Dorster's latest production Rhinoceros.

The dictionary defines a rhinoceros as 'a large, thick-skinned mammal having one or two horns on the snout.' Whatever this play is, it doesn't sound like the definition. It certainly appears different from anything most people have seen. "We get to run around on stage making fools of ourselves," laughs Sophomore Kelly Johnson, "but it's a unique experience."

Set in France, the play depicts all the changes that happen in a town after seeing a rhinoceros. Suddenly the townpeople discover that the whole town is slowly turning into rhinoceroses. Each day the number of rhinoceroses grows, and each day people learn to accept that their friends and family are animals. "It's a play where you need to use your imagination," announces Senior Jeff Pritchard.

Junior Marisa Creed plays a waitress who is asking about the rhinoceroses.

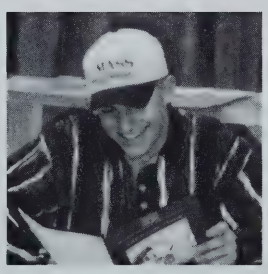
Senior Chris King has managed to describe the play in four words. He insists, "It was truly amazing."

At his desk, Senior Jeff Pritchard begins to argue about the rhinoceros with Senior Kristin Shaver.

Trying to prevent students from drunk driving, the S.A.D.D. members. . .

Take A Stand

Students Against Drunk Driving. The students at MHS have started a crusade against one of America's leading killers, drinking and driving. Throughout the year , they target certain events such as the prom and try to emphasize driving safely. Senior Michelle Thurber believes "S.A.D.D. shows people the consequences of drinking and driving."



Junior Shawn Cavalieri looks at the different stickers in the new SADD catalog.

Ribbon distribution started the campaign. Soon hundreds of red ribbons could be seen everywhere from a car antenna to a school backpack.

The zealous young group also participated in a call-in talk show. Freshman Sarah Briggs explains, "You got to call in and ask questions. It was neat."

Finally, they are rallying together to ensure a safe prom night. As well as spreading the word, they sponsored a fashion show. Junior Shawn Cavalieri states, "We had to wear prom dresses and tuxedos."

Although trying to protect students during the prom season has their big concern this year, they want to prevent all students from drinking and driving.

Freshmen Rachel Burgio and Sarah Briggs give Seniors Andrea Restaino and Donna Bokoske a giant hug after the successful fashion show.

Junior Juliane Murray looks at a red ribbon from Brian Widrow which symbolizes their dedication to avoiding drinking and driving.

While listening to her tutor, Senior Kerri Dempsey jots down some suggestions about her autobiography for English class.

After receiving help on her Macbeth paper during one of her free periods, Sophomore Christine Witty changes the corrections her tutor has pointed out.

At MHS, the Newspaper and the Writer's Forum have the responsibility of creating and expressing. . .

The Perfect Word

Do you like to write? Would you like to share your work with others? If you answered yes to these questions, you might be a good candidate for the newspaper or the Writer's Forum.

Senior Leslie Mastone contmplates her next newsbreaking article.

With the Newspaper, anything goes. It covers everything from Senior Leslie Mastone's Superbowl Championship story to a critique of the new planners by Sophomore Lynn Kamen. Sophomore Dipesh Mukerji insists, "The people who get involved work as hard as they can and do great things."

As for the Writer's Forum, the editors are compiling some stories and poems for the school magazine, The Stylus. "Over the summer I just wrote and I wanted to see if it was any good," explains Junior Katie Steele, "it was feedback. I didn't feel like I was being judged."

Whether you like the jazzy articles in the newspaper or the quiet discretion of the Writer's Forum, one thing is certain; each always tries to express students' creative ideas.

Throughout the year, the yearbook staff created a book that. . .

Paid Off!

"Wanna buy a yearbook, can I have a quote, and say cheese." All words spouted by the enthusiastic members of the yearbook.

The zealous yearbook staff began the year selling ads and books. Who could forget those annoying yet entertaining sales jingles playing over the intercom. "I love the yearbook because it earned me a free one," asserts Sophomore Kristen Calvin, "it also helped in Economics class."

Next, the staff hunted around looking for people to write stories. With the help of some brilliant writers, the yearbook produced articles about everything from friendship to food. "I was asked to write a story; it wasn't difficult," adds Senior Karen Caldwell, "then I arranged pictures and wrote captions. It was fun."

The dedicated staff continued to lay out pages and type text to meet upcoming deadlines. Senior Karen Steele explains why she put so much time and effort. "I joined so I could have a part in the yearbook."

Senior Kristin Shaver pauses during an interview to pose for a picture.

Senior Melanie Morganti works diligently filling out the envelopes for the supplements that the Yearbook will be mailing soon.

Memories bring our High School experiences...

Full CIRCLE

"Mommy, whose picture is this?"

"Oh, that's Chris Niles."

"Who's he?"

"Someone I knew in high school."

"Will you see him tonight at the 'union?'

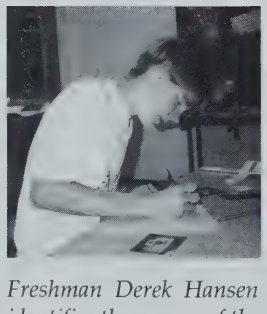
"That's reunion, and yes I will."

"What did he do in high school?"

"He was in my gym class."

Twenty years from now when we assemble for our reunions, we will open our yearbooks again and thumb through the musty pages. The faded messages our friends wrote, the pictures, and the stories will be our link to the past. The Yearbook will help us remember our first jobs and the days we could sleep until eleven. We will remember winning the Superbowl and wearing our pajamas to school during Spirit Week.

Bits and pieces of our memories may be forever lost. But whenever we want to bring back our pasts, whenever we want to relive our experiences. . . the Yearbook will be our looking glass. It is not just about us, it is us. . .the students of Mansfield High School.



Freshman Derek Hansen identifies the names of the Freshman sports teams.

An action succeeds, a promise is honored, a commitment is kept only at the moment of completion. When you do what you say you'll do, there is no "maybe", no unfulfilled word. After reviewing all her quotes, Sophomore Kelly Johnson writes the Boys' Soccer Story for the sports section.

Thank You

Who would have thought four years agothat I would be writing a note as the editor? Certainly not I. Yet three people believed in me enough to help me get here. Jason, my fingers will never forget all the typing. Patrick, thank you for reminding me to laugh through the tough times. Finally Sarah, with your guidance and faith, I was able to complete this book.

Thanks to Mrs. Kitchen, Mrs Pierce, and Mrs. Baptiste for everything from tissues to rosters. Norm and his Gang for opening doors and letting me in. Mom, thanks for dropping me off, and Ron, thanks for picking me up. Mr. Modica, thank you for the sodas as well as the weekly pep talks. Thanks to the Yearbook Staff. Kelly, Shanna, Sue, Karen, Derek, Kristen, Karen, Jason, Kerri, Marisa, Al, Jen, Jason, you have done a wonderful job. You should be very proud of yourselves--this book is the best. Mel, Fridays wouldn't have been the same without you. Mr. Hansen, what can I say? You've said it all. Thank you for everything-- your help, the confidence, and the extra pickles and tomatoes. I couldn't have finished this book without you. Thank You!

Finally, I must say to the 739 students of MHS who are the reason this book comes out every year, thank you for the pictures, the quotes, and all the laughs. This has been the greatest experience of my life.

"You think WHO should type the Senior Directories?" THE Senior Editor, Kerri Santsaver, jousts verbally during one of the lighter moments in the Yearbook Room.

At the Thanksgiving rally, Senior Samantha Stowell dons her "Cat in the Hat" hat reminding everyone that just because we will be graduating in June, doesn't mean we won't always be young at heart.

Back in fifth grade, what to choose for lunch was the biggest worry for Seniors Brian Guilfoy and Mike Durling. Looking back, life seemed easy because now they have to decide what to do with their lives.

Forever Young

Whether we design skyscrapers or roam the jungles of Africa we will always be the Class of 1995.

Coming from such a small town, most of us have grown up together. From our days at Park Row, Robinson, and Roland Green, we have changed. Some of us have made new friends while others have remained close to the same people since first grade. We have shared common hours in dance class, Little Laeague, Scouts, and who could forget Sargeant Camp? Steve Medieros hasn't. He remembers, "We shined flashlights on Billy Hazeldine because he was sucking his thumb."

As we look back, we recall all the memories we made. "I used to make fun of Sue Turner, and she was bigger than me. One day she flipped me over in my chair and threatened to beat me up," laughs Dave Sullivan, "She actually challenged me to a fight!"

Now, as we face our graduation, we must remember all that we have shared. Who can forget when Siobhan changed her name?

"I remember we were dancing to 'No Woman Don't Cry' by Bob Marley and we were outside," explains Al McKeever, "it started to rain, but we just kept on dancing and getting soaking wet."

No matter how close or how far we are, we share a common bond that will remain as strong as it is today for all eternity. Whether working as a lawyer on Wall Street or searching for the fountain of youth, we, the one and only Class of 1995 will remain FOREVER YOUNG.

At the Holly Ball, Michelle Thurber dresses in an elf costume and becomes one of Santa's little helpers. After she hands out the candy canes, the fun begins when she heads out on to the dance floor.

"I know that there are people I'll lose contact with, but my best friends and I will always be together."

Just 'Round the Corner

Although the underclassmen often get lost in the senior shuffle, their role at MHS is of vital importance.

College applications and senior pictures. Because people put a lot of focus on seniors each year, sometimes underclassmen are overlooked. However, they make up the majority of the school and keep it running smoothly.

Freshmen, the newest members of the school spend many days exploring and searching for their niche in the MHS community.

"Finding where I belonged was easy, I joined Concert Choir," reveals Freshman Jason Wright.

While many freshmen struggle to find their identities, the sophomores have found theirs and have become actively involved at MHS. They put pressure on the seniors at the spirit competition by coming in at a close second.

"We have so much more spirit this yearcompared to Freshman year," comments Sophomore Sarah Dunfey.

Junior year contains many long awaited events such as the prom which the Juniors plan entirely. Some find themselves inducted into the National Honor Society, while others stress over getting their driver's licenses. "Junior year is stressful but I have my license so I can go out more," points out Junior Juliane Murray.

Despite their different roles, all MHS students are special. Underclassmen are the future of Mansfield High School. As the seniors depart the hallowed halls, the underclassmen wait JUST 'ROUND THE CORNER.

Freshmen class president Dave Pierce gets down to business with an in-depth discussion during a break in his hectic schedule.

Because of the many different aspects of junior year, MHS students struggled to answer the question of . . .

What Is A Junior?

"Juniors are people who think they're really special."

Sophomore
Andy Tupaj

"A junior is someone who should be respected."

Junior
Alyssa DiGiovanni

"My brother Dave (Dybes) is a junior. He's my idol!"

Freshman
Adrienne Dybes

"The junior class is pretty cool. They're more mature than we were when we were juniors."

Senior
Emily Alland

"Juniors are all pretty nice. They have great personalities."

Sophomore
Ryan Heroux

"Junior year is so much fun. We get to experience all the good stuff like the prom without any of the college anxieties."

Junior
Kristin Conti

"A Junior is someone who is too big to stomp and too big to insult."

Sophomore
Tim Binney

As a junior, Bridget Doleszar is supposed to be a role model for underclassmen. Although contrary to the picture, she reminds everyone that they should always remember to have fun.

Goofing around in the hallway, Nicole Forbes gives Michelle Chappuis the ride of her life. Next time, Michelle might want to reconsider accepting one of Nicole's "rides".

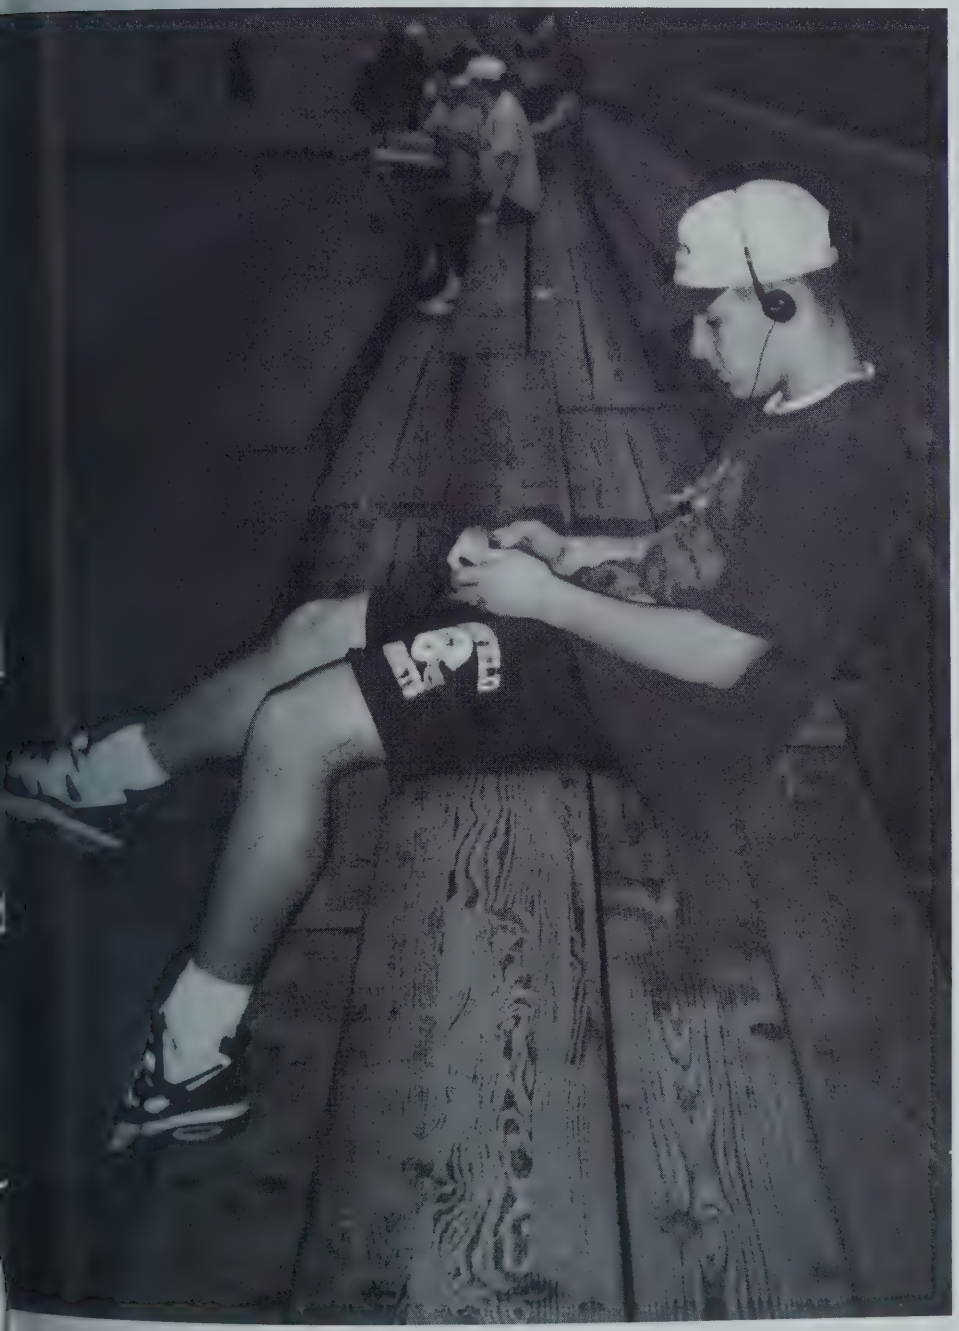
While listening to everything from classical to alternative, the Junior Class appears to march to the beat of a. . .

Different Drum



Adjusting the radio station, Shawn Cavaleiri relaxes with his walkman while waiting for the next basketball game to start in the MHS gym.

"1ST PERSON"

Eight tracks have vanished and records are fading fast. Nowadays teens prefer tapes or CD's. What is their favorite?

"I like tapes better than CD's because I don't have a CD player."

Jason Charron

"The sound quality is much better with CD's."

Liz Cregg

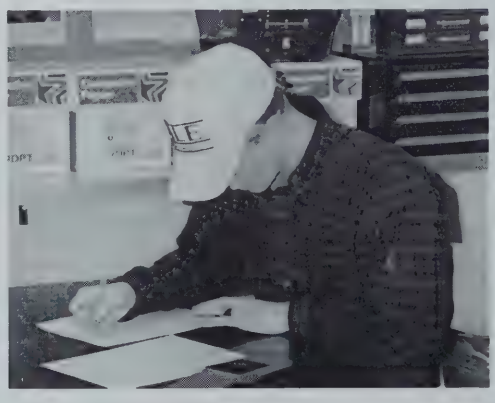
"I like CD's at home but tapes in the car, because the CD's skip. So I buy CD's and make tapes from them."

Kristin Conti

"It doesn't matter. Music is my energy, it keeps me going."

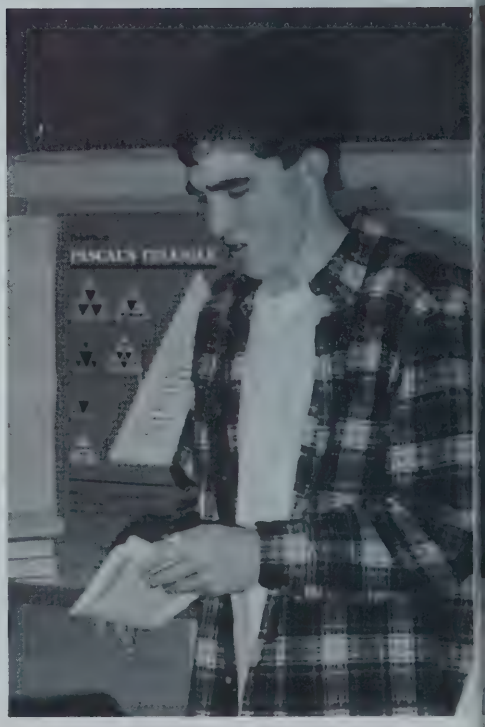
Shannon Leatha

During history class, Katelynn O'Brien copies the notes from the board into her notebook adding little squiggles and doodles when she gets bored.



Pouring over his notes, Jon Pierce works out the math problems he missed on a test and corrects all of his errors.

Puzzled, Steve Nangle opens a letter left on his desk. Could it be a secret admir-er? No such luck. He suddenly realizes it's his English notes from yesterday.



"1ST PERSON"

What really is contained in the notebooks which we carry around with us?

"I keep my little poems, sketches, and dumb little things from my friends in there."

Marisa Creed

"Notes. What else?"

Aaron Morse

"I keep a nail file in the pocket of my 3 ring binder."

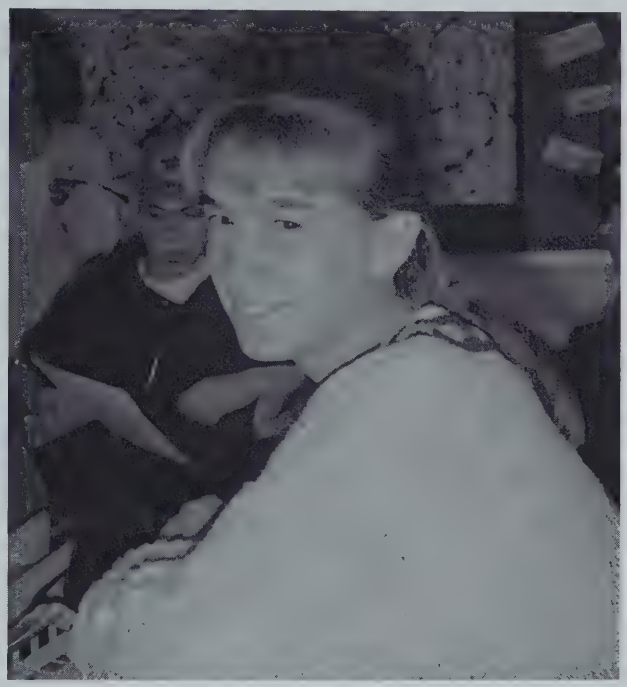
Michelle Chappuis

"The weirdest thing I keep in my notebook? Hmmm. HOMEWORK! Why? Because I so rarely do it."

Shawn Cavalieri

At MHS, students come to class with notebooks in hand, but after class these notebooks hold more than just the latest notes on Hamlet.

Scribbling Away!



While she waits for the bell to ring, Kerri Dingivan draws on the cover of her English book.

A little nervous before her test, Stacey Mullin yanks out her notes so she can review in the few minutes before class.

What Is A Sophomore?

Defining a freshman was challenging for MHS students, however thinking of a way to describe the sophomore experience was even tougher.

"A sophomore is someone who is older than me."

Freshman
Jim Shriver

"Sophomores are the BEST! We're just plain awesome."

Sophomore
Curt Sullivan

"A Sophomore can best be described as a 5 year child in a 15 year old's body."

Junior
Dave Dybes

"A sophomore is someone who is frustrated because they can't drive yet and can't go out when they want to."

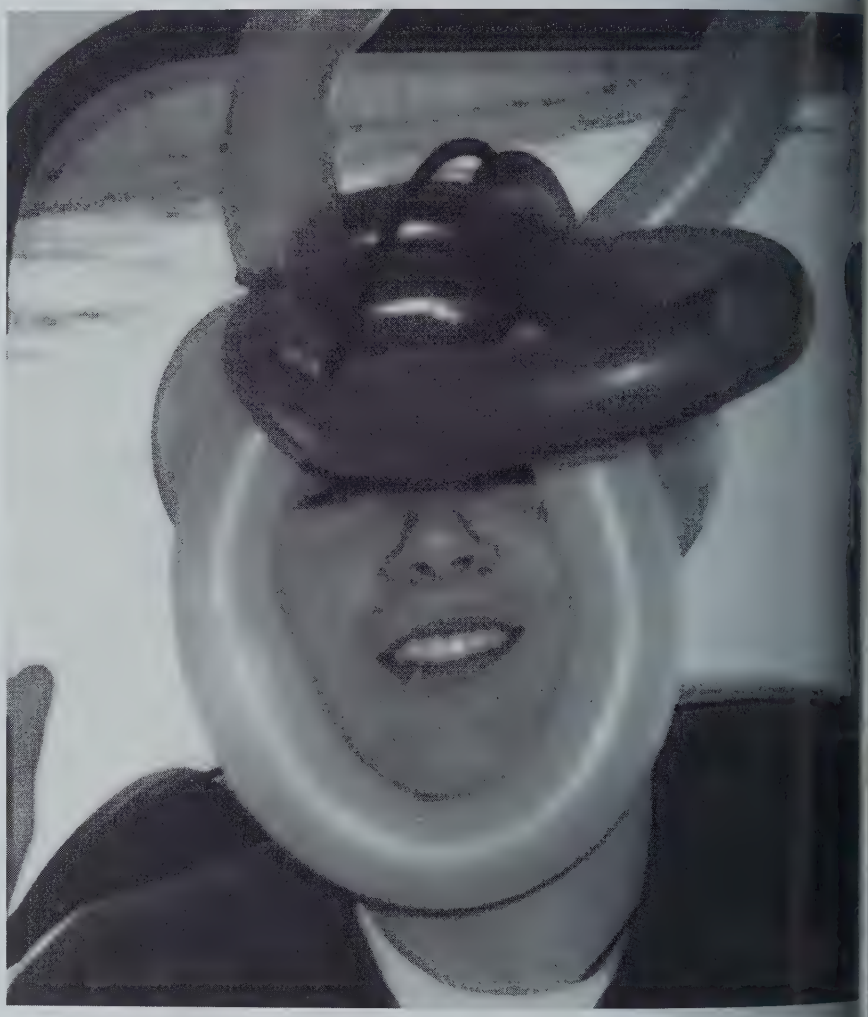
Senior
Katie Begley

"Sophomores are overlooked. We're not the oldest and we're not the youngest. We're kind of like Jan Brady."

Sophomore
Carrie Flammia

"Sophomores are just one step above a freshman."

Junior
Carrie Thistle



Still underclassmen, sophomores are not expected to be serious all the time. Who is this sophomore clowning around while on the Spanish trip to Quilla's?

On a more serious side, here is sophomore Will Pellegrini selling goods to raise money for the class.

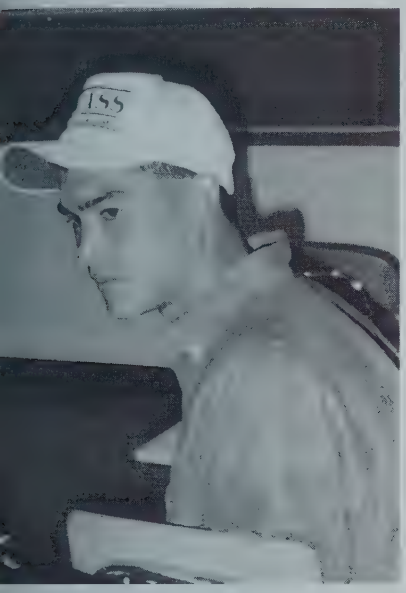
Flipping their Lids

At MHS, students wear everything from fishermen hats to outrageous straw hats or grungy old Bruins caps.

is the usual look of most of the boys at S, the baseball cap. Here Karl Stukis os his love for his favorite college team, the ass Minutemen.



Boys are not the only people who can wear hats. Girls sometimes wear them to cover up bad hair days, or to show their support for their favorite sport. Here Crystal Petty wears a Mickey Mouse hat displaying her love for Disney.

Sporting the Spanish-Mexican look, experiments using a sombrero while on the Spanish class trip to Quilla's.

"1ST PERSON"

All around school, one can find people wearing various hats. What are the students' favorite ones?

"I like to wear a baseball cap when I'm having a bad hair day."

Mary Ann Tomase

With many styles, the Sophomore Class comes to school each day and puts on a . . .

Fashion Show

"1ST PERSON"

"Clothes do make the man." Or woman such as the case may be. At MHS, clothes seem to define a person. Why do students wear certain clothes? Which is more important feeling comfortable or looking stylish?

"Feeling comfortable. I like to wear jeans and shirts. I like to match, and I hate ripped clothes, but feeling comfortable is the most important."

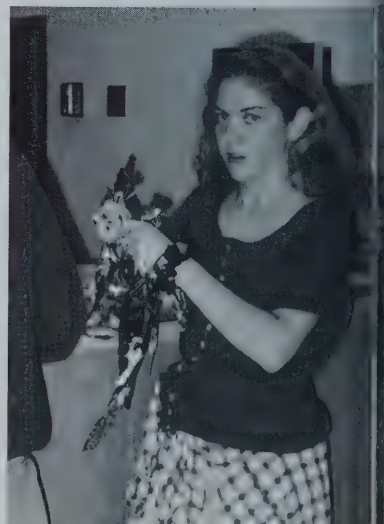
Stacey Whelan

"Comfortable definately. I like my jeans big and baggy, and my t-shirts untucked. Once in a while, I will tuck them in, but I prefer them loose.

Mary Ann Tomase

Always up to date with the latest fashion, Kristy Simpson walks the halls demonst her keen fashion

Can you guess Shannon Sheldon's favorite band? Around school many individuals wear clothing expressing their taste in music.



Choosing a more casual look, sophomore Jaime Freedman dons a plaid shirt around her waist.

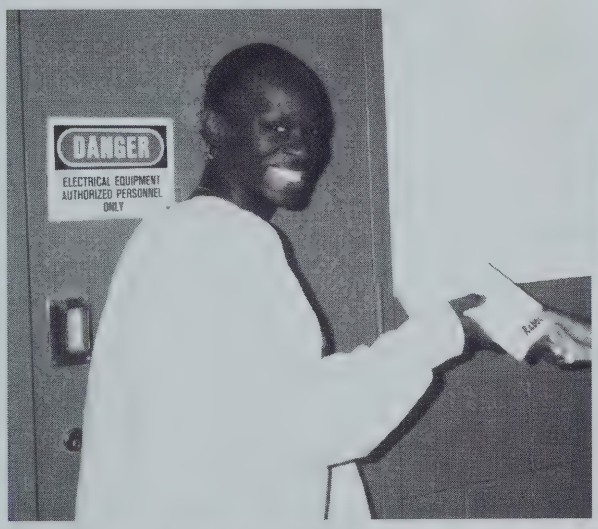
Bunny Business

Trying out a new fundraiser, the Sophomore Class sold chocolate Easter Bunnies.

"That will be five dollars please," states Kristy Simpson as she hands Temeka Green one of her many chocolate bunnies.



Supporting her class, Lisa Orchard purchases one of the infamous bunnies being sold around school.

"1ST PERSON"

No, it wasn't Easter. Yet bunnies were all over Mansfield High School. What was it like selling the bunnies?

"It was hard. One day we talked about ordering Easter candy, and the next thing I knew 1800 chocolate bunny rabbits arrived.

Sitting in the library, Lindsay Weinburg studies for her exam in English Literature during her free period.

"1ST PERSON"

Each year, everyone has to take required courses like English. Since Freshmen take so many of them, what are their favorite classes and why?

"Study is great because you don't have to do any work. If I had to choose a class it would be biology. All of my friends are in it."

Shanna O'Leary

"I guess it would be French because I have fun doing the skits."

Always Around

Through the years at Mansfield High School, the faculty has always played an enormous part in our lives.

The teachers at MHS play a vital role in our school everyday. Because their help has always been available to us, we sometimes take it for granted. Few of us realize or have taken the time to think about how much our teachers really do for us.

Where would we be without our teachers? Who knows! Few of us can answer this question. There is no way to imagine this, the situation is too unreal istic for us to comprehend.

Our teachers are our class and club advisors. Without Mrs. Johnson SADD and the French Club would not exist. And where would the junior class be without the support and guidance of Mr. Morales and Mr. Perry?

Our coaches are our teachers as well. Ms. DeGirolamo takes on double duty as the varsity softball and freshman basketball coach. Without Mr. Redding and his hardworking football team, where would we be on a Friday night?

As well as teaching academics, they teach the all important lessons of life. In turn they become our friends and confidants. Teachers congratulate us when we succeed and catch us when we fall. Although teachers play a variety of roles, one thing is certain. We depend on them because they are a constant in our ever-changing lives. Teachers are truly ALWAYS AROUND.

Ms. Zangari helps two of her students with a tough geometric proof during class.

Teachers' Pets

Although MHS teachers love their students, their pets at home mean a lot to them too!

Many people own pets--teachers are certainly no exception. Teachers at Mansfield High School have many different opinions when asked about pets.

Some teachers have a large number of animals at home. For instance Ms. Kenter-Potty has an entire barnyard full of animals.

Others do not own pets. When asked about them Mrs. Tighe stated that "animals belong outside in their natural habitat."

Teachers' pets are a very diverse group as well. Ms. Carli owns a snake while Ms. Baptiste has a rabbit. However most faculty members agree that the old favorites still top the list.

Mr. Tiatorio owns a dog as well as Ms. Girard who claims, "My dog Abby has a personality all her own." Some own the other traditional companion, the cat. Among these are Mr. von Dorster and Ms. Hayward.

Whether its slimy or fluffy, big or small, traditional or exotic teachers' sure do love their pets!

Ms. Kenter-Potty leads her two horses, Hope and Abbey, back to the stable after a grueling ride.

Andy, Mrs. Davenport's ever popular dog, plays in the snow on her back porch.

Who are these future teachers?

MHS teachers share their thoughts on their profession and why they chose to become teachers.

"When I was young, I never knew I wanted to be a teacher. All I knew was that I wanted to work with children."

- Ms. Westlund

"Inside I always knew that I wanted to be a teacher but formally decided in my sophomore year of college. I wanted to spend my life working with and reading literature and viewed teaching as a way to do that."

- Mr. Stahler

"I made my decision to teach in elementary school because I loved school. Also, my family is from Portugal and my parents think teaching is a very important profession."

- Mrs. Johnson

"I had been out of college for a couple of years when I made my decision in 1977. Previously, I worked in business making a lot of money however I wasn't satisfied with it. I got a job as a substitute teacher first and liked it so I went back to college to learn how to teach."

- Mr. Modica

On Christmas morning, little Ms. Smith, (Mrs. Donahue), smiles brilliantly as she shows off her brand new doll.

Can you imagine who this adorable little boy is? Why, it's our very own Sr. Morales of course! Muy bien!

Here, our matron and friend, Connie McTernan, is a precious five years old.

Colophon

Volume 95 (not) of the Mansfield High School Yearbook was produced by the yearbook staff as a labor of love with the services of Jostens Yearbook Printing & Publishing Company, College Park, Pennsylvania. The 192 pages are printed in black ink on 80 pound glossy paper using an offset lithography process. The limited edition of 285 copies sold out!

The cover is 120 point Davey board, green foil stamped and clear varnish silk screen on a flat black background. It incorporates a custom design and theme, coming Full Circle, developed by the staff at yearbook camp with the assistance of Jostens' graphic arts services and our representative, Mr. Norval E. Garnett, Jr. The text is twelve point Palatino with nine point, italicized captions. Headlines were set in 36 point Palatino. The trim size is 7 3/4 x 10 with Kelly green end sheets designed by senior editor, Kerri Santsaver.

Candid and sports photography were provided by Chestnut Hill Studios in Seekonk, Massachusetts, with additional contributions by student photographers and from personal family files. Senior portraits are additional work of Chestnut Hills Studios while underclass photographs were taken by Pavitt-Alston Studios.

Around the Town

Over the summer and throughout the fall, the Mansfield community showed it's support for Mansfield High School students.

This section contains ads placedby parents and the business community. Without their support, we would not be able to create this high quality book. To the parent thank you for all your help. I know your children will appreciate what you have done. Each of these ads has been specially designed for your child. To the business community, I express my deepest gratitude for all that you have donated this year. Each year you help us and this year we have tried to help you. Around the business ads, pictures were placed so that your ads will be highly visible. Again I would like to restate my thanks to everyone who participated.

Smiley,
I want you to know how much it has meant to me having you for my friend.
You've been so much a part of my life for such a long time.
And whether we've been side by side or many miles apart,
I've always felt close to you.
We know each other so well that whenever we're together,
I always feel nice and easy.
We can do something special or nothing much.
It doesn't really matter.
I know that if I need a mood lightened, a secret kept, a story shared, advice given, help offered, a memory relived, a success celebrated--anything--I can always count on you. And you on me.
When I think of our good times, it makes me smile remembering them all.
And it makes me glad knowing there'll be more good times ahead of us.
I'm always happy when new friends come into my life.
But old friends are always best friends.
I know that's true because of you.
Love always

Jeff,
Still wearing flannel after all these years!

Keep smiling!

Love,
Dad, Mom & Amy

Congratulations Donna!
